Berlin Talks Show Signs Of Progress

Soviet Demands May Still Be Stumbling Block

BERLIN (AP) — For the first time in 17 months of negotiations on the future of Berlin, the Big Four ambassadors met today for a second consecutive day. And another session is scheduled Thursday.

It was the 28th meeting of the ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France since they began negotiations in March 1970. Sources in Bonn said the unusual burst of activity was an attempt to make decisive progress toward new arrangements for the divided city. But the Soviet demands may still be too high for the other wartime allies.

Western officials indicated the meeting Thursday will be followed by a pause during which some of the ambassadors will take vacations and the issues in dispute will be referred back to legal and technical experts or to Washington, Moscow, Paris and London.

Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abramov said, "two big steps" were taken at the meeting Tuesday, but neither he nor his aides would identify the steps. A Soviet spokesman said he was referring to all issues and to the narrowing of the gap between the West and Moscow.

Western officials said the "two big steps" statement was purely a Soviet concept and they did not know what was meant. During the day Abramov also met with the chief of the East German Communist party, Erich Honecker, whose regime will be asked to abide by new Soviet guarantees of unimpeded traffic between West Berlin and West Germany.

But a British official indicated there is no agreement on the concessions the Russians are demanding in exchange for their guarantee of unimpeded

Say Crash In Siberia Killed 100

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet airliner crashed while landing at Irkutsk airport in Siberia last week, and an estimated 100 persons were killed, travelers reported today.

The plane belonged to Aeroflot, the Soviet government airline, they said, and was believed to have been on a domestic transiberian flight.

The travelers said they learned that the craft "came down heavily and flipped over as it was landing."

"We have no information on this," said the Soviet Aviation Ministry. That is its usual comment in such cases.

The travelers said they did not know what kind of plane it was.

The last officially acknowledged Soviet air crash occurred at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport in August 1969 when 16 summer vacationers were killed.

The most recent known air disaster happened at Leningrad airport last Dec. 31. Western airline representatives reported at the time that an Aeroflot Il-yushin 18 on a flight to Armenia crashed on takeoff killing more than 93 persons.

The government has never acknowledged this crash. Irkutsk is a large industrial city in southern Siberia 149 miles from Mongolia.

Two Stabbed In Idaho Pen Riot

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Authorities say about 50 convicts were high on drugs during rioting at the Idaho Penitentiary in which two inmates were stabbed and two buildings were burned.

Guards fired tear gas as about 150 of the prison's 245 inmates, some armed with knives or baseball bats, rioted Tuesday night. The convicts demanded more frequent changes of clothing because temperatures range as high as 118 degrees in the 100-year-old institution.

Warden Raymond W. May, who made the estimate that about 50 inmates were high on drugs, brought the situation under control by telling the prisoners that none would be punished for the uprising and that their demand probably would be met.

During a lull in the riot, Warden May and Ada County Sheriff Paul Bright argued heatedly before newsmen. Bright accused May of being too lenient.

May met with a six-member inmate council and said the main prisoner grievance was over a rule allowing changes of clothing only every three days despite the 100-degree heat.

A medical attendant, David Bortz, 25, of Burley, Idaho, was stabbed in the chest by inmates who broke into the hospital in search of drugs, prison officials said. Bortz was serving a two-year sentence for passing bad checks.

Charles Rice, 30, of Evans City, Pa., serving 10 years for lewd conduct, also was stabbed in the chest.

A third inmate, Charles Sharp, suffered eye injuries from tear gas fired by guards.

There were no escape attempts and no hostages were taken. The prison softball team returned from a tournament in the middle of the riot and was taken to another jail for the night.

Many inmates were in the courtyard when the riot began at 7:30 p.m. The maximum security section has been vacant since prison officials discovered a tunnel there Sunday.

A social service center and a building housing a recreation area, shoe repair shop and laundry facilities were in flames when May and an aide walked into the middle of 150 shouting inmates.

May, who agreed to stop the issue of tear gas and remove guards from sight if the inmates would quiet down, said he saw at least six inmates with knives taken from the kitchen. Many had baseball bats, he said.

"They complained about the heat and improper ventilation in the cellblocks," May said. He added that temperatures range up to 118 degrees inside and prisoners are unable to get proper rest.

Lack of clothing and antiquated laundry facilities forced the prison six months ago to stop daily clothing changes. A new prison is under construction.

100 Wounded In Two Days Of Violence

Britain Sends Reinforcements To Troubled Area

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Furious new gun battles erupted between guerrillas and British troops in Belfast today while street warfare came to an uneasy recess in Londonderry, Newry and other bullet-scarred cities of Northern Ireland.

The four-day death toll stood at 20 after another day of blood-letting. The latest deaths were two gunmen killed by troops. More than 100 other persons have been wounded.

During the night mobs of Protestants and Roman Catholics battled each other. Rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army clashed. And troops and police fought all of them in attempts to restore order.

The fury was triggered by the roundup started Monday of suspected members of the IRA and an announced policy of internment without trial.

Stores and office buildings were shuttered today, their workers unable to move about the littered streets. Food shortages plagued many Belfast districts. Wholesalers refused to make food deliveries or were unable to get through barricaded streets.

In the midst of the violence police continued questioning persons arrested in massive raids earlier. An informed source said 230 persons have been detained after questioning and are held in Crumlin Road prison and on a former submarine depot ship, HMS Maestri, in Belfast harbor.

This source said Prime Minister Brian Faulkner would sign internment orders against the majority of the detainees.

In Dublin, an army spokesman said more than 2,000 Catholic refugees had fled across the border from the north and were housed in five camps opened by the Republic of Ireland.

Protestant refugees from the fighting fled to England or took shelter with friends or in empty houses in quieter parts of Belfast.

Dr. Patrick Hillery, foreign minister of the Irish Republic, met for 90 minutes in London with Reginald Maudling, the acting British prime minister.

Hillery was reported to have

Acting Premier Meets With Laird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cambodia's acting prime minister meets with Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird today for a discussion of military needs, including boosting the training capability of the expanding Cambodian army under a $200-million U.S. aid program.

Sisavath Sirik Matk planned the Laird meeting following a one-hour session Tuesday with President Nixon and 90 minutes with Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

U.S. officials say there is little Laird can do to provide American training for the 200,000-man Cambodian armed forces. The United States is barred by congressional action

Southern Lines Win Rate Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern railroads have won a 20-year dispute with announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission that it will drop a court battle over freight rates.

The ICC had sought to give non-Southern railroads an increased share of rates on freight shipments between their areas and the South.

But an ICC attorney said Tuesday the commission agrees "at present" that Eastern and Western railroads have failed to make a case.

In Atlanta, Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said the decision will save Southern shippers $10 million per year.

Just before the Korean War, Georgia and railroad officials sought successfully to have a traditional freight setup change increasing rates for the South. In 1965, however, the ICC returned the rate structure to the old system, favoring non-Southern lines.

Southern opposition to the new rules culminated in formation of the Southern Governors' Conference, which successfully fought the rates in a lower court.

The Supreme Court rejected an ICC appeal, and the system reverted to the one favored by Southern railroads, equally dividing interstate shipping rates.

The latest action means the commission will not try to start new litigation "at present" against the Southern lines.

Federal Court Sees Busing As Threat To Integration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little-noted ruling by a federal court in Atlanta indicates that because of housing patterns the long effort to desegregate Southern schools has come full circle and is leading to resegregation.

In rejecting massive busing as a means of further integrating Atlanta's schools, the court said the city is on the brink of becoming all-black and would be pushed over the brink if busing were ordered.

Holding there now is no difference between the segregation remaining in Atlanta and that in large Northern cities, the court dismissed the case, which has been fought for 13 years.

"On the facts alone," wrote U.S. Dist. Court Judge Sidney O. Smith Jr. and Albert J. Henderson Jr., "the court concludes that wholesale busing is neither reasonable, feasible nor workable."

The July 28 ruling has been appealed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Atlanta decision was brought to the attention of Congress last week by Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., a foe of busing, who called the ruling "significant and historic."

Court Denies Ellsberg Bid

BOSTON (AP) — An appeals court has ordered Dr. Daniel Ellsberg to go to California to face charges of illegal possession of secret government documents, specifically the Pentagon papers.

Judge Frank M. Coffin of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals denied Tuesday an appeal by Ellsberg and said he must face arraignment in California Aug. 16.

Ellsberg, 40, worked on the Pentagon papers while with the Rand Corp., a "think-tank" operation at Santa Monica, Calif., which does sensitive policy research for the government.

Ellsberg has admitted publicly that he gave the papers—a history of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war—to the press.

His lawyers contended the Justice Department should be required to say whether illegal wiretap information was used as evidence to obtain a grand jury indictment against Ellsberg.

He inserted it in the Congressional Record and said he hopes members read it before the House considers the administration's $1.5-billion school desegregation-aid bill when it returns from summer recess.

Judges Smith and Henderson said the Atlanta school board has acted promptly and responsibly in carrying out every desegregation order and has voluntarily taken other steps to speed the process, only to see the goal continually slip away.

When the suit was begun in 1958, they said, Atlanta had a pupil ratio of 70 per cent white and 30 per cent black with a predominantly white faculty. Today it is the reverse, 70 per cent black and 30 per cent white, with 60 per cent of the faculty black.

During the period enrollment dropped from 115,000 to 100,000 as whites moved out at an accelerating pace, the court noted. Last year, it said, 7,000 whites left the system and 1,000 blacks entered.

As a result, the court said, every effort by the school board to achieve racial balance in the schools has been undermined in short order by shifting neighborhood racial patterns. New schools placed specifically to increase integration are all-black by the time they are ready for use, it said.

The cause of such frustrating results lies in factors completely beyond the control of school authorities, the judges said. "Segregated housing... remains the unconquerable foe of the racial ideal of integrated public schools in the cities."

To order for Atlanta the kind of busing upheld last April by the Supreme Court for Charlotte, N.C., they said, would hasten deterioration of the schools and the city.

Chile Quietly Eliminated From American Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chile has quietly been phased out of the United States foreign-assistance program after receiving more per capita over the past decade than any other South American nation.

However, State Department sources say Chile's exclusion is attributable to economic considerations—not to emergence of a socialist government in Chile headed by Marxist President Salvador Allende.

They say Chile's balance-of-payments situation does not require any development loans, adding that no loan applications have been received from the nine-month-old Allende government.

The Chilean embassy did not comment on the aid phase-out.

The Agency for International Development (AID) has placed heavy emphasis in recent years on the so-called balance-of-payments loans, aimed at liberalizing money and credit policies to stimulate employment, output and investment.

Chile's exclusion from the development-loan program is disclosed in an AID report on projected outlays for Latin America for fiscal 1972.

Chile is omitted from the list of 15 Latin American countries for which $310 million is earmarked for development loans during the year.

The exclusion contrasts sharply with preferential treatment the United States showed previous Chilean governments, particularly that of Allende's predecessor, Eduardo Frei.

Between 1961 and 1970, Chile received $461.8 million in development loans or about $50 for each Chilean, the highest per capita figure for any South American nation.

The highest gross sum, $1.1 billion, was allocated to Brazil. The only other major countries omitted from the fiscal 1972 list are Venezuela, Argentina and Mexico, which have not received U.S. loans for years because of their relatively advanced development levels.

10 Council Hopefuls Ruled Off Ballot

TWINSBURG, Ohio (AP) — Three incumbent Twinsburg councilmen and seven other candidates for council have been ruled off the November ballot by the Summit County Board of Elections for technical errors in their filing petitions.

The board said Tuesday that the 10 Twinsburg candidates across the county whose petitions were ruled invalid because of errors such as improper nominating statements, incomplete candidate information and improper signatures.

Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State, said, however, such penetration is impractical from a sales standpoint.

Nixon Housing Policy Facing Columbus Test

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Columbus low income housing project known as Ivy Wood seemed to be shaping up today as a prime test of the Nixon administration's new housing policy.

A controversy was developing both in Columbus and in Washington over efforts to block the NAACP-sponsored housing project near several predominantly white suburban areas.

In Washington Tuesday, Marvin Kaplan, spokesman for the Washington-based Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, told the Cleveland Plain Dealer's Washington bureau that the Columbus case could be the first major test of the Nixon administration's policy on rent subsidies for low income housing.

The President's housing statement of June 11 indicated opposition to forcing "economic integration" on unwilling white areas, but it also opposed local low-income housing policies aimed at keeping suburban areas predominantly white, the newspaper said.

The proposed 234-unit housing project would be built near several white suburban areas, but within the Columbus city limits.

Bernard LeCour, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said all city zoning and sewer regulations have been met and school authorities have said space is available, the newspaper said.

Fergus Theibert, head of the Columbus office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), said the project would receive a "high priority" rating from his office when new funds become available soon, the Plain Dealer said.

But U.S. Rep. Samuel L. Devine, R-12, Columbus, said that the White House has interfered in normal HUD review procedures at his request. Devine said there was widespread opposition in his district to the project.

The newspaper said that Nixon aides passed off as "routine" a response to a congressman's inquiry that the legislator is saying there is a presidential pledge to hold in "abeyance" federal support for the project.

A HUD spokesman said the White House merely "has asked for a status report" and denied there has been pressure to "block" the project, the Plain Dealer said, adding that the spokesman would not say if a White House request for a status report is unusual.

"Given the priority already awarded the project by HUD's Columbus office and the lack of any conflict with local zoning laws, civil rights officials say that if the project fails to win federal support, then any low-income housing project that created controversy would be in great jeopardy," the newspaper said.

Opposition reportedly is based on the contention that new-income housing would tax schools and sewer systems and create transportation problems.

"But LeCour said the white residents of the area have reacted 'in sheer fear and panic' mainly because the project is backed by the NAACP," the newspaper said.

LeCour insisted that sponsorship of the project by a leading civil rights organization did not mean the project would be all black. The Plain Dealer said, adding: "He said several other low-income projects nearer to Columbus' predominantly Negro areas remain racially balanced."

HOTPANTS will not be accepted as school attire in Circleville, Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of city schools, reported at last night's board meeting. Jacobs did announce that the dress code which went into effect late last school term would be used again this year. For some dress guidelines and other information on school opening, see the school board article on page 14. Bus routing for the district will be published later.

RESIDENTS in a part of the area of Roundtown who were without water today, get ready for another drought. The water department is going to cut your tap off between 1 and 4 p.m. Thursday if you live on the following streets...

On Franklin from Pickaway to Eastmoor... On Mound from Washington to Eastmoor... On Washington from Franklin to Main... On Clinton from Union to Mound... All of Mingo... Going to replace some more valves.

Today's News Being Read From Old Paper

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of people are reading today's news on yesterday's newspaper because of environmental concern that has led to increasing use of recycled newsprint.

The American Paper Institute estimated that of all the newspapers printed in 1969, 23 per cent were recycled; that is, collected and reprocessed into new paper.

Industry, conservation groups, legislators and others have combined to aid in the recycling drive.

In Madison, Wis., for example, the institute and city officials joined to ask residents to separate newspapers from other refuse. As a result about 40 per cent of the collectable newspapers are being recycled, according to the institute.

Irvington, N. J., legislators passed a law requiring that householders put their newspapers out separately once a month. Charities pick up the paper and sell it to a recycling company.

San Diego, Calif., residents are encouraged to put their newspapers into one of 200 boxes set out by the Kiwanis Club. The city picks up the papers and sells them. The Kiwanis Club gets $5 for every full box and the city salvage operation gets $8.

The institute estimates that groups which collect and sort old paper make about $25 million annually. In addition, taxpayers save $25 in the cost of refuse disposal for every ton of paper that is collected, according to institute figures.

The most important product made from recycled waste paper of all kinds is combination paperboard. The API estimated 70 per cent of recycled paper is used in this form. Next comes newsprint and then a variety of other projects including cartons, posters and book covers.

How much recycled newsprint can be used?

The Garden State Paper Co., the major producer of recycled newsprint, estimated a maximum of 40 per cent.

Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State, said, however, such penetration is impractical from a sales standpoint.

Scudder said close to 200 papers in 27 states use recycled newspaper, including the Chicago Sun-Times, the New York Post, the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post.

Candidate Jailed By Viet Police

SAIGON (AP) — Police have arrested Tran Tuan Nham, a candidate for the lower house in the Aug. 29 elections, after he staged a protest in support of another candidate jailed by the government, a Saigon newspaper reported today.

The Vietnam Guardian said Nham carried a poster cartoon showing President Nixon with a Hitler-style mustache and with an X drawn over the picture. The caption read: "Oppose the U.S. Save our country."

Nham was protesting the recent arrest of Nguyen Xuan Lap on a charge of distributing antigovernment leaflets. Supporters of Lap, who leads a Buddhist student group, have been fasting outside the militant An Quang pagoda in Saigon for the past three days.

In a related development, the government announced the confiscation of three opposition newspapers for cartoons and articles "which might harm the national security."

One of the papers, Tin Sang, published by opposition Deputy Ngo Cong Duc, was cited for three articles questioning President Nguyen Van Thieu's support in the armed forces, charging that summer military training is a new form of "jail" for university students, and accusing U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker of being a "specialist in rigged elections."

The editors of the confiscated papers are to be prosecuted by the Interior Ministry before a civilian court. In such cases the papers are generally given heavy fines.

The July 28 ruling has been appealed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Atlanta decision was brought to the attention of Congress last week by Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., a foe of busing, who called the ruling "significant and historic."

Court Denies Ellsberg Bid

BOSTON (AP) — An appeals court has ordered Dr. Daniel Ellsberg to go to California to face charges of illegal possession of secret government documents, specifically the Pentagon papers.

Judge Frank M. Coffin of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals denied Tuesday an appeal by Ellsberg and said he must face arraignment in California Aug. 16.

Ellsberg, 40, worked on the Pentagon papers while with the Rand Corp., a "think-tank" operation at Santa Monica, Calif., which does sensitive policy research for the government.

Ellsberg has admitted publicly that he gave the papers—a history of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war—to the press.

His lawyers contended the Justice Department should be required to say whether illegal wiretap information was used as evidence to obtain a grand jury indictment against Ellsberg.

He inserted it in the Congressional Record and said he hopes members read it before the House considers the administration's $1.5-billion school desegregation aid bill when it returns from summer recess.

Judges Smith and Henderson said the Atlanta school board has acted promptly and responsibly in carrying out every desegregation order and has voluntarily taken other steps to speed the process, only to see the goal continually slip away.

When the suit was begun in 1958, they said, Atlanta had a pupil ratio of 70 per cent white and 30 per cent black with a predominantly white faculty. Today it is the reverse, 70 per cent black and 30 per cent white, with 60 per cent of the faculty black.

During the period enrollment dropped from 115,000 to 100,000 as whites moved out at an accelerating pace, the court noted. Last year, it said, 7,000 whites left the system and 1,000 blacks entered.

As a result, the court said, every effort by the school board to achieve racial balance in the schools has been undermined in short order by shifting neighborhood racial patterns. New schools placed specifically to increase integration are all-black by the time they are ready for use, it said.

The cause of such frustrating results lies in factors completely beyond the control of school authorities, the judges said. "Segregated housing ... remains the unconquerable foe of the racial ideal of integrated public schools in the cities."

To order for Atlanta the kind of busing upheld last April by the Supreme Court for Charlotte, N.C., they said, would hasten deterioration of the schools and the city.

Chile Quietly Eliminated From American Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chile has quietly been phased out of the United States foreign-assistance program after receiving more per capita over the past decade than any other South American nation.

However, State Department sources say Chile's exclusion is attributable to economic considerations—not to emergence of a socialist government in Chile headed by Marxist President Salvador Allende.

They say Chile's balance-of-payments situation does not require any development loans, adding that no loan applications have been received from the nine-month-old Allende government.

The Chilean embassy did not comment on the aid phase-out.

The Agency for International Development (AID) has placed heavy emphasis in recent years on the so-called balance-of-payments loans, aimed at liberalizing money and credit policies to stimulate employment, output and investment.

Chile's exclusion from the development-loan program is disclosed in an AID report on projected outlays for Latin America for fiscal 1972.

Chile is omitted from the list of 15 Latin American countries for which $310 million is earmarked for development loans during the year.

The exclusion contrasts sharply with preferential treatment the United States showed previous Chilean governments, particularly that of Allende's predecessor, Eduardo Frei.

Between 1961 and 1970, Chile received $461.8 million in development loans or about $50 for each Chilean, the highest per capita figure for any South American nation.

The highest gross sum, $1.1 billion, was allocated to Brazil.

The only other major countries omitted from the fiscal 1972 list are Venezuela, Argentina and Mexico, which have not received U.S. loans for years because of their relatively advanced development levels.

10 Council Hopefuls Ruled Off Ballot

TWINSBURG, Ohio (AP) — Three incumbent Twinsburg councilmen and seven other candidates for council have been ruled off the November ballot by the Summit County Board of Elections for technical errors in their filing petitions.

The board said Tuesday that the 10 Twinsburg candidates across the county whose petitions were ruled invalid because of errors such as improper nominating statements, incomplete candidate information and improper signatures.

Will Ask Aid For Cambodia

Acting Premier Meets With Laird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cambodia's acting prime minister meets with Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird today for a discussion of military needs, including boosting the training capability of the expanding Cambodian army under a $200-million U.S. aid program.

Sisavath Sirik Matak planned the Laird meeting following a one-hour session Tuesday with President Nixon and 90 minutes with Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

U.S. officials say there is little Laird can do to provide American training for the 200,000-man Cambodian armed forces. The United States is barred by congressional action

Southern Lines Win Rate Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern railroads have won a 20-year dispute with announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission that it will drop a court battle over freight rates.

The ICC had sought to give non-Southern railroads an increased share of rates on freight shipments between their areas and the South.

But an ICC attorney said Tuesday the commission agrees "at present" that Eastern and Western railroads have failed to make a case.

In Atlanta, Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said the decision will save Southern shippers $10 million per year.

Just before the Korean War, Georgia and railroad officials sought successfully to have a traditional freight setup change increasing rates for the South. In 1965, however, the ICC returned the rate structure to the old system, favoring non-Southern lines.

Southern opposition to the new rules culminated in formation of the Southern Governors' Conference, which successfully fought the rates in a lower court.

The Supreme Court rejected an ICC appeal, and the system reverted to the one favored by Southern railroads, equally dividing interstate shipping rates.

The latest action means the commission will not try to start new litigation "at present" against the Southern lines.

Today's News Being Read From Old Paper

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of people are reading today's news on yesterday's newspaper because of environmental concern that has led to increasing use of recycled newsprint.

The American Paper Institute estimated that of all the newspapers printed in 1969, 23 per cent were recycled; that is, collected and reprocessed into new paper.

Industry, conservation groups, legislators and others have combined to aid in the recycling drive.

In Madison, Wis., for example, the institute and city officials joined to ask residents to separate newspapers from other refuse. As a result about 40 per cent of the collectable newspapers are being recycled, according to the institute.

Irvington, N.J., legislators passed a law requiring that householders put their newspapers out separately once a month. Charities pick up the paper and sell it to a recycling company.

San Diego, Calif., residents are encouraged to put their newspapers into one of 200 boxes set out by the Kiwanis Club. The city picks up the papers and sells them. The Kiwanis Club gets $5 for every full box and the city salvage operation gets $8.

The institute estimates that groups which collect and sort old paper make about $25 million annually. In addition, taxpayers save $25 in the cost of refuse disposal for every ton of paper that is collected, according to institute figures.

The most important product made from recycled waste paper of all kinds is combination paperboard. The API estimated 70 per cent of recycled paper is used in this form. Next comes newsprint and then a variety of other projects including cartons, posters and book covers.

How much recycled newsprint can be used? The Garden State Paper Co., the major producer of recycled newsprint, estimated a maximum of 40 per cent.

Richard B. Scudder, chairman of Garden State, said, however, such penetration is impractical from a sales standpoint.

Scudder said close to 200 papers in 27 states use recycled newsprint, including the Chicago Sun-Times, the New York Post, the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post.

How does recycled newsprint compare with regular newsprint?

Irwin Jaffe, director of the testing laboratory of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Research Institute, said that on the basis of initial tests "basically you could say it's the same quality."

Jaffe said the recycled paper is "pretty much the same color" as regular newsprint. He said there were only very slight differences in other qualities like opacity, strength and texture.

Jaffe added, however, it was still impossible to determine how newsprint recycled more than once would stand up. "We have no knowledge of how many times it can be recycled," he said.

A spokesman for the Richmond Newspapers, publisher of the morning Times Dispatch and evening News Leader, said these papers had been using recycled newsprint since last fall. These newspapers are in the same corporate organization as Garden State.

put on record his government's opposition to the internment policy of the Belfast government. Political sources also speculated that Hillery had demanded a meeting between the leaders of Britain, his country and the Northern Ireland regime.

The British government announced in London that it was dispatching 550 more troops to reinforce the 12,000 soldiers hard pressed by the worst bloodshed since Ulster's six Protestant counties were separated from the rest of Ireland, which is Roman Catholic, half a century ago.

The soldiers sealed off the Falls Road, Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Ola Park Road areas of Belfast as those Catholic districts crackled to the sound of gunfire under the flickering light of burning buildings.

The two gunmen were shot when they opened fire on army patrols, military headquarters said. Three men were captured in the fight just before dawn. A few hours later troops moved into the area to flush out snipers and arrested 35 persons for questioning.

More than 100 shots were fired in Leeson Street off Falls Road in what appeared to be a battle between rival IRA factions.

Mobs of Protestants and Catholics tried to get at each other across Crumlin Road Tuesday night, but troops drove a wedge between them. As the mobs retreated, the soldiers came under sustained sniper fire. The troops flattened themselves on the sidewalk and poured bullets into the surrounding rooftops, which were lit by flares.

Police reported a civilian died in a truck overturned during another clash between Protestants and Catholics hurling rocks and bottles. A youth lost a leg.

As Belfast's night fell streets were deserted except for combatants. Troops came under "really vicious, highly controlled" fire, the army said.

Explosions damaged a movie theater and a garage. A bank blazed, and several homes were in flames, stripped of valuables as their occupants fled.

More violence hit Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, and Newry, its third. A sniper killed a soldier in Derry, and two other troops were wounded there.

A boy of 11 and another of 14 were seen placing a package outside an army recruiting office in Londonderry. Seconds later a powerful explosion wrecked the building and hurled a car 30 yards across the street.

Four other explosions filled the night air in less than seven minutes. One hundred rioters assaulted troops with rocks, flaming gasoline bombs and gelignite nail bombs.

2 Men Fined $150 For DWI

Circleville Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb fined two men $150 and costs for driving while intoxicated.

William Brown, 28, Marion, and David Pence, 32, Chillicothe, both pleaded guilty. They were sentenced to 30 days in the county jail in addition to the fines.

Judge Lamb suspended 27 days of Pence's sentence.

Brown was also charged with driving when he had no license. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail on that count.

Katherine J. Reeser, 29, 935 S. Washington St., involved in a minor accident with a police cruiser last week, was fined $15 and costs for not using proper caution when pulling from a marked position along the curb.

William H. Camp, 19, 535 Greenacre Court, was fined $10 and costs for speeding 70 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

Thieves Strike Deercreek Auto

A breaking and entering at the Deercreek Auto Parts building on Route 23 is under investigation by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

Ralph Baldwin, manager of the lot, reported he had closed at 7 p.m. Tuesday and found a plywood panel had been removed from an overhead door when he opened at 7:30 a.m. today.

The thieves made off with $85 in change from two soft drink machines and two pistols and a holster from the office. The guns were valued at $100.

Lindsay Renounces GOP

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay switched to the Democratic party today "to fight for new national leadership." But he said he did not know if he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

"In a sense, this step recognizes the failure of 20 active years in progressive Republican politics," the mayor said in a statement.

"In another sense, it represents a new decision to fight for new national leadership," he added.

The tall, handsome mayor, who will be 50 in November, said he had "no illusions about the Democratic party," but that he would "work as a Democrat without abandoning my personal independence."

Lindsay, who served four terms in the U.S. House of Representatives as a Republican, was elected in 1965 as the city's first GOP mayor in 20 years.

He was defeated for re-nomination in the 1969 Republican primary, but won in November over both major party candidates as a Liberal-Independent.

At a news conference in his residence, Gracie Mansion, Lindsay said the 1972 Democratic convention should be "as open as any in American history."

"Whether this means I will run for president, I do not know," he said. "But it does mean that I am firmly committed to take an active part in 1972 to bring about new national leadership."

Lindsay has been openly critical of President Nixon's foreign and domestic policies. He has made speeches at rallies opposing the Vietnam war.

The mayor also has broken frequently with Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, charging that the GOP state administration has short-changed the city.

Rockefeller was on vacation in Portugal. A spokesman in Albany said he would have no immediate comment.

There was no immediate comment from the White House.

Nixon has been quoted by his communications chief, Herbert Klein, as having said he hoped Lindsay would stay in the GOP.

Lindsay assailed the Nixon administration in his statement for what he termed indifference to the plight of the poor, and said it had failed to respond to the problems of unemployment, housing, hospitals, crime, poverty and race polarization.

Lindsay said he was breaking with the GOP because it had "moved so far from what I perceive as necessary policies for our city and for our country that I can no longer try to work within it."

"It has become clear that the Republican party and its controlling leaders in Washington have finally abandoned the fight for a government that will respond to the real needs of most of our people ... and of those most in need."

The Democratic party, Lindsay said, offers "the best hope for a chance in national direction and national leadership" in the presidential race next year.

Cities Speak On Tax Bill
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Municipal officials of Ohio got a chance today to speak before the Senate Ways and Means Committee as it explored possible new taxes.

About 25 mayors or other city officials were expected for the hearing.

The Senate subcommittee on criminal law scheduled a review of proposed revisions in the state's criminal code.

Massive revisions have been proposed in the state's criminal code which have had no substantial changes made in more than a century.

Criminal law revisions introduced earlier this year culminate a six-year study by a technical committee appointed by the Legislative Service Commission.

The House passed a bill Tuesday revising the size of an estate which can be passed to heirs without costly and time consuming probate procedures. It raises the values of such estates from $3,000 to $5,000, a figure originally agreed to by the Senate.

Fire Damages Shed
Firemen extinguished a blaze about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening in a shed on the property of Miss Lucille Carner, 420 Abernathy Ave.

Fire officials were unable to determine the cause of the blaze which inflicted $50 damage to the frame storage building and $50 to its contents.

Romania Answers Soviet Criticism
VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Independent-minded Romania declared today it intended to strengthen links with all Communist countries, obviously including Red China.

That appeared to be the Romanian answer to severe criticism from Moscow and other Soviet bloc countries because Romania has remained independent in the Soviet-Chinese feud.

Stock Prices Show Gains

NEW YORK (P) — Bargain-hunting in glimmers helped push the stock market broadly higher today. Trading was moderately active.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was ahead up 5.18 at 844.77.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 2 to 1 among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said they considered the market oversold and said a technical correction probably was overdue.

Most individual stock price changes were small except in glimmers which brokers said were benefiting from bargain-hunting.

put on record his government's opposition to the internment policy of the Belfast government. Political sources also speculated that Hillery had demanded a meeting between the leaders of Britain, his country and the Northern Ireland regime.

The British government announced in London that it was dispatching 550 more troops to reinforce the 12,000 soldiers hard pressed by the worst bloodshed since Ulster's six Protestant counties were separated from the rest of Ireland, which is Roman Catholic, half a century ago.

The soldiers sealed off the Falls Road, Ballymurphy, Ardoyne and Old Park Road areas of Belfast as those Catholic districts cracked to the sound of gunfire under the flickering light of burning buildings.

The two gunmen were shot when they opened fire on army patrols, military headquarters said. Three men were captured in the fight just before dawn. A few hours later troops moved into the area to flush out snipers and arrested 35 persons for questioning.

More than 100 shots were fired in Leeson Street off Falls Road in what appeared to be a battle between rival IRA factions.

Mobs of Protestants and Catholics tried to get at each other across Crumlin Road Tuesday night, but troops drove a wedge between them. As the mobs retreated, the soldiers came under sustained sniper fire. The troops flattened themselves on the sidewalk and poured bullets into the surrounding rooftops, which were lit by flares.

Police reported a civilian died in a truck overturned during another clash between Protestants and Catholics hurling rocks and bottles. A youth lost a leg.

As Belfast's night fell streets were deserted except for combatants. Troops came under "really vicious, highly controlled" fire, the army said.

Explosions damaged a movie theater and a garage. A bank blazed, and several homes were in flames, stripped of valuables as their occupants fled.

More violence hit Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city, and Newry, its third. A sniper killed a soldier in Derry, and two other troops were wounded there.

A boy of 11 and another of 14 were seen placing a package outside an army recruiting office in Londonderry. Seconds later a powerful explosion wrecked the building and hurled a car 30 yards across the street.

Four other explosions filled the night air in less than seven minutes. One hundred rioters assaulted troops with rocks, flaming gasoline bombs and gelignite nail bombs.

2 Men Fined $150 For DWI

Circleville Municipal Court Judge Sterling Lamb fined two men $150 and costs for driving while intoxicated.

William Brown, 28, Marion, and David Pence, 32, Chillicothe, both pleaded guilty. They were sentenced to 30 days in the county jail in addition to the fines.

Judge Lamb suspended 27 days of Pence's sentence.

Brown was also charged with driving when he had no license. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to three days in jail on that count.

Katherine J. Reeser, 29, 935 S. Washington St., involved in a minor accident with a police cruiser last week, was fined $15 and costs for not using proper caution when pulling from a marked position along the curb.

William H. Camp, 19, 535 Greenacre Court, was fined $10 and costs for speeding 70 miles per hour in a 60 mile zone.

Electric Lines Cut

Vandals are believed responsible for cutting electric wires to three outside lights at Jim's Pay and Save on Route 3.

The lines were evidently cut with a hatchet sometime Tuesday.

Lindsay Renounces GOP

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay switched to the Democratic party today "to fight for new national leadership." But he said he did not know if he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

"In a sense, this step recognizes the failure of 20 active years in progressive Republican politics," the mayor said in a statement.

"In another sense, it represents a new decision to fight for new national leadership," he added.

The tall, handsome mayor, who will be 50 in November, said he had "no illusions about the Democratic party," but that he would "work as a Democrat without abandoning my personal independence."

Lindsay, who served four terms in the U.S. House of Representatives as a Republican, was elected in 1965 as the city's first GOP mayor in 20 years. He was defeated for renomination in the 1969 Republican primary, but won in November over both major party candidates as a Liberal-Independent.

At a news conference in his residence, Gracie Mansion, Lindsay said the 1972 Democratic convention should be "as open as any in American history."

"Whether this means I will run for president, I do not know," he said. "But it does mean that I am firmly committed to take an active part in 1972 to bring about new national leadership."

Lindsay has been openly critical of President Nixon's foreign and domestic policies. He has made speeches at rallies opposing the Vietnam war.

The mayor also has broken frequently with Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, charging that the GOP state administration has short-changed the city.

Rockefeller was on vacation in Portugal. A spokesman in Albany said he would have no immediate comment.

There was no immediate comment from the White House.

Nixon has been quoted by his communications chief, Herbert Klein, as having said he hoped Lindsay would stay in the GOP. Lindsay assailed the Nixon administration in his statement for what he termed indifference to the plight of the poor, and said it had failed to respond to the problems of unemployment, housing, hospitals, crime, poverty and race polarization.

Lindsay said he was breaking with the GOP because it had "moved so far from what I perceive as necessary policies for our city and for our country that I can no longer try to work within it."

"It has become clear that the Republican party and its controlling leaders in Washington have finally abandoned the fight for a government that will respond to the real needs of most of our people... and of those most in need."

The Democratic party, Lindsay said, offers "the best hope for a chance in national direction and national leadership" in the presidential race next year.

Cities Speak On Tax Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Municipal officials of Ohio got a chance today to speak before the Senate Ways and Means Committee as it explored possible new taxes.

About 25 mayors or other city officials were expected for the hearing.

The Senate subcommittee on criminal law scheduled a review of proposed revisions in the state's criminal code.

Massive revisions have been proposed in the state's criminal code which have had no substantial changes made in more than a century.

Criminal law revisions introduced earlier this year culminate a six-year study by a technical committee appointed by the Legislative Service Commission.

The House passed a bill Tuesday revising the size of an estate which can be passed to heirs without costly and time consuming probate procedures. It raises the values of such estates from $3,000 to $5,000, a figure originally agreed to by the Senate.

Fire Damages Shed

Firemen extinguished a blaze about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening in a shed on the property of Miss Lucille Carner, 420 Abernathy Ave.

Fire officials were unable to determine the cause of the blaze which inflicted $50 damage to the frame storage building and $50 to its contents.

July Income Of City Court Is $13,083

Fines, costs and bond forfeitures collected by Circleville Municipal Court during July totaled $13,083.30 according to the monthly report completed by Naomi Houghton, clerk of the court.

Of the total collected, $8,924.80 went to the city. The treasurer of the state received $2,937.69, the county $1,197.61.

There were 605 cases filed during July and 507 were concluded. A total of $742 in fines and costs were suspended in 23 cases.

In addition to the criminal docket of the court, 11 cases were filed in the civil division and four were concluded. The judge performed one marriage during the month. The city received $52.17 in costs on the civil docket.

New Dentist Will Open Office Here

DR. JAMES RIVER
A new dentist is opening his office Monday in Circleville.

James D. River, DDS, is a recent graduate of Ohio State University's College of Dentistry who will be setting up business here at 407 E. Main St., the former office of Dr. Emily Lutz.

River is a Chillicothe native. He attended OSU, earning a bachelor of arts in anatomy in 1965 and a bachelor of science in zoology the following year. He accepted a teaching position with Chillicothe School District in 1966, but after one year teaching, he quit to take advantage of an opportunity to enter Ohio State's dental school. He graduated June 11 with his doctorate in dental science.

River holds membership in the American and Ohio Dental Associations and Psi Omega professional fraternity.

He and his wife Nancy Jo, and three-year-old daughter Kimberly Jo, plan to locate here as soon as housing is available.

Stock Prices Show Gains

NEW YORK (P) — Bargain-hunting in glimmers helped push the stock market broadly higher today. Trading was moderately active.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was ahead up 5.18 at 844.77.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 2 to 1 among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said they considered the market oversold and said a technical correction probably was overdue.

Most individual stock price changes were small except in glimmers which brokers said were benefiting from bargain-hunting.

Savannah's Retirement

The nuclear ship Savannah, more than nine years after she went into service as the world's first nuclear-powered merchant ship, is still called one of the world's most exciting ships. But she is going into mothballs as an economic failure.

Only once in the years since the Savannah began plying the oceans in 1962 has she had to return to port for refueling, and then to replace only four of her 32 nuclear elements. Not bad for a ship which has covered 450,000 miles.

But the $54 million vessel never has paid its own way. She is too small to profit from commercial trade, and no U. S. firm is willing to take over the ship's $3 million operating cost.

Already out of service for a year, the Savannah is heading for a retirement which very likely will be permanent. The U. S. has no other nuclear merchant ships and is not planning to build any. One Savannah — fast, powerful and sleek though she is — is enough.

Nearing The End

The summer vacation season although it continues on a reduced scale for weeks after that milestone in season's activities. It is now drawing to a close, and many of those who indulged in this popular American pastime report it was tops.

There is no doubt that new marks are being set by numbers of persons taking vacations this year and amount of money they are releasing into trade channels. But so integral a part of American life has vacation time — summer or winter — become that few figures or estimates have been released.

Tourist facilities have beef expanded greatly in recent years. But in most areas these are barely adequate to provide accommodations for a people that, year by year, ranges farther from home in quest of relaxation from the daily grind.

Paper Engagement Forms

Some idea of how difficult it is for heads of government departments to cut back on unnecessary paperwork was voiced by Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, when he estimated 35 per cent of the directives, memorandums and reports being produced in the upper levels of the Pentagon were useless documents whose main purpose seemed to be the generation of still more paperwork.

And an additional 30 per cent of the top-echelon paperwork, Laird estimated, was too long and complicated, and therefore almost equally ineffective and wasteful.

By Laird's own estimate, then, about two-thirds of the paper crop cultivated by the top management of his own department either should not be produced at all or should be shrunk to a more manageable size.

This is quite an admission to come from the boss. Having made it, however, the odds are considerably in favor of Laird trying to do something about it. The paperwork battle in the Defense Department is on.

The enemy has been identified and assessed. The assault presumably is being planned. That first engagement should be something to behold.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Just two weeks after Federal Reserve chairman Arthur Burns was rebuked by the White House for his criticism of inflation policy, the same bleak evaluation has been expressed in similar language by a member bank.

"Recent price developments continue to be thoroughly disappointing," said the New York Federal Reserve Bank in a monthly economic review. It was almost the same language used by Burns in his run-in with the White House.

The bank's critique emphasized the growing variance in the interpretation of economic policy by the White House and by businessmen, congressmen and economists.

"On balance," said the bank, "there are virtually no signs of a significant lessening in the pace of inflation," adding that "movements in wages and prices have provided little or no relief from inflationary pressures."

It also extended its criticism to economic conditions in general, expressing concern that the Gross National Product was growing at a rate below that which should be expected.

Its interpretation of economic conditions was summarized in this sentence: "Business activity continues to recover at a rather slow pace in a highly inflationary atmosphere."

The administration, however, sees things differently. It maintains that patience is needed. Repeatedly it issues assurances that the recovery is developing and will eventually show statistical evidence of strength. The criticism is not all negative.

In the view of some economists, the administration does have a case. Its problem is in convincing what appears to be a growing number of concerned consumers, businessmen and congressmen who have growing doubts.

The First National City Bank insists that conditions are not nearly as bad as they have been interpreted by critics. "The poor-mouthing of the actual performance of the home economy during the second quarter is not justified by the facts," it maintains.

It attributes some of the problems to the business mood and the realities being out of step. Conditions are "reasonably satisfactory," it says, adding that "the current malaise is hard to justify."

It notes that consumer spending is up, as are retail sales, purchasing power and corporate profits, although it agrees that business confidence has been sapped by "erratic monetary policy and the evident weakness of the dollar."

Savannah's Retirement

The nuclear ship Savannah, more than nine years after she went into service as the world's first nuclear-powered merchant ship, is still called one of the world's most exciting ships. But she is going into mothballs as an economic failure.

Only once in the years since the Savannah began plying the oceans in 1962 has she had to return to port for refueling, and then to replace only four of her 32 nuclear elements. Not bad for a ship which has covered 450,000 miles.

But the $54 million vessel never has paid its own way. She is too small to profit from commercial trade, and no U. S. firm is willing to take over the ship's $3 million operating cost.

Already out of service for a year, the Savannah is heading for a retirement which very likely will be permanent. The U. S. has no other nuclear merchant ships and is not planning to build any. One Savannah — fast, powerful and sleek though she is — is enough.

Nearing The End

The summer vacation season although it continues on a reduced scale for weeks after that milestone in season's activities. It is now drawing to a close, and many of those who indulged in this popular American pastime report it was tops.

There is no doubt that new marks are being set by numbers of persons taking vacations this year and amount of money they are releasing into trade channels. But so integral a part of American life has vacation time — summer or winter — become that few figures or estimates have been released.

Tourist facilities have beefed up greatly in recent years. But in most areas these are barely adequate to provide accommodations for a people that, year by year, ranges farther from home in quest of relaxation from the daily grind.

Paper Engagement Forms

Some idea of how difficult it is for heads of government departments to cut back on unnecessary paperwork was voiced by Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, when he estimated 35 per cent of the directives, memorandums and reports being produced in the upper levels of the Pentagon were useless documents whose main purpose seemed to be the generation of still more paperwork.

Really to keep up with the news in this busy, busy world, you have to read the items that turn up in rural weeklies in Britain. Here are three, copied verbatim by alert researchers of Punch Magazine: 1. The firm of Hinchcliffe was fined five pounds for selling an almond bun which was not of a substance demanded by the purchaser in that it contained a moth. Defense maintained, "Our client has been the victim of a freak of nature in that the moth hatched out in January instead of in summer." (Warfield Observer) 2. "I invite you to visit with me a couple well-known in our town and far beyond. We will knock on their door without fear of being refused because they have been dead for many years." (J. Scott in The Essex News) 3. Retired Ealing spinster Nellie Still was picking flowers Thursday when she was attacked by an old goose. Now back in her home, she recalled her nasty experience while resuming picking snowdrops and primroses. (Middlesex County Times)

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I'm a chronic sufferer of bursitis. I can bear the pain when an attack comes on, but I'm always worried that I might develop a "frozen shoulder." I work with a drill press, and if this happened I would be finished.

Mr. H. J. Ind. Dear Mr. J.: Perhaps if I give you an understanding of what bursitis is, you will gain a better insight into the cause, and learn how to prevent its complications. Most joints of the body function smoothly because a lubricating "bursa" or "sac" rests between them.

This sac or bursa may become inflamed by injury (working a drill press, for example), by infection, by gout or by other diseases.

There are few more painful conditions than a sudden, acute attack of bursitis.

One of nature's protective mechanisms is to force you to keep the shoulder at rest. Pain will make you do this.

If the cause of the bursitis is allowed to continue and if the condition is left untreated, stiffness and rigidity of the joint may be a complication of chronic bursitis.

There are now many excellent ways of treating acute and chronic bursitis. Relief of pain can be obtained with injections of procaine or other anesthetics. Cortisone reduces the swelling of the sac. Antibiotics control infection. Infrared heat, ultrasonic vibrations and X-rays are selected for each individual case.

If you do not neglect your bursitis, and if you get down to the basic reasons for it, there is no reason why you should feel that your working destiny will be determined by a "frozen shoulder."

If working a drill press is found to be the persistent reason for your condition, you may have to face reality and explore other avenues of work that do not cause constant irritation of your shoulder.

I am 13 years old and would like to know what damage can result from cracking of the knuckles.

J. J. Conn. Dear J.: As far as I know, most of the "damage" done by cracking the knuckles is to the sensitive nerves and cars of those who watch and hear you. Some might argue that if you continue to do this for the next 60 years, you might develop

Time Of The Great Retreat

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The sight of two U.S. astronauts driving a rover on the moon below 14,000-foot mountain peaks fills one with the wonder of America. But this is the culmination of something planned more than ten years ago, when we still had confidence. We reap as we sow — and what have we sown lately?

Let us cherish astronauts David Scott, James Irwin and Major Alfred Worden, for they could be among the last representatives of a vanishing breed. We are a nation in retreat. We fought clumsily in Southeast Asia, taking five years where it should have taken two and wasting many young lives. Still, we were the victors in the field. What is the excuse, then, for throwing it all away by our dissidence on the home front, as we are now doing?

After World War II, President Harry Truman made the decision to contain Communism. He faced Stalin down in the struggle for Greece and the eastern Mediterranean; he faltered a bit in Korea, but still he preserved a line between the Communist world and our own. The policy continued to pay dividends when our responses in South Vietnam encouraged the Indonesians to turn back the Maoist attempt to seize Java and Sumatra and the rest of those rich and strategically placed islands.

The canker in the policy was our intellectual inconsistency:

our leaders never faced up to the logical necessity of keeping Communism weak enough so that it could be contained. We let Moscow overtake and pass us in atomic armaments; we talked of building bridges to the East; we sought trade with the same enemy that we were opposing on the battlefields in Vietnam.

We were brave in Guatemala and in Lebanon, but we let Hungary fall back into the Communist night when we might have saved it, and we betrayed the true freedom loving Cubans at the Bay of Pigs. Small wonder that our logical children rebelled at being drafted to fight against an enemy in Asia that got its guns, its ammunition, its trucks and its anti-aircraft missiles from the power we are seeking to placate by our bridge-building in Europe. If Communism was "all right" in Eastern Europe, why was it so terrible in Southeast Asia?

And what is wrong with the logic of the American thought who told me that she, though an anti-Communist, would fight like a tiger to keep her son out of a war in which he might be killed by a bullet made in a nation with whom we retained the friendliest sort of relations? Because we have been soft in the head and weak in will, our retreat is in danger of becoming a rout. We show no real perspective when it comes to dealing with our issues in Congress.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, threatened with bankruptcy, was saved in the Senate by a single vote. The reason given was our fear of what the collapse of a great builder of airplanes would do to increase unemployment. This was a craven reason for departing from free enterprise principles. The honorable explanation for helping Lockheed by guaranteeing some bankers' loans would have been to say that the airplane company was vital to our military position in the world. As such, it was something outside the free enterprise economy. It had come up with the U-2 and the supersonic SR-71 spy planes just in time to give us the aerial reconnaissance that was necessary to sustain our stands in foreign policy in the days before we had the robot spy. It should have been defended as a linchpin of the military—that is needed to guarantee our peace.

But who is defending the military-industrial complex these days?

The excuse for our growing retreat from global commitments is that we must take care of things at home. But where is the guarantee that our enemies will leave us alone to concentrate on an isolationist Eden? As we lose influence, we will lose our economic power. Why should foreigners sustain our dollar if they get no defense for their pains? We give up the supersonic jet to get mass transit, but then we get mass transit. The taxes from a shrinking economy won't be enough to support all those brave welfare schemes.

We got to the moon, but that was because of a decision made in a vanished time. Nixon himself has warned that we may be on the verge of decadence. His new Far Eastern policy, which must end by throwing Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and the Philippines to the wolves, is surely part of the decadent drift.

Could it be that the President, in his heart of hearts, knows that we aren't up to sustaining the role we accepted in 1945 and is trying to make the best of a bad situation? That is the only logical justification for his portentous shift.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Left-handed men make moody husbands, particularly if they are married to right-handed wives.

Gardening is the most moral of all hobbies or pastimes. It allows a person to exercise both his destructive and constructive impulses. He vents his righteous anger by triumphantly destroying weeds, each of which to him personifies the devil, and expresses the sacrificial glory of his nature by rearing lovely flowers, each of which to him becomes a blooming angel.

Most craps shooters are kind to children—as long as they don't get in the way when the dice are being thrown.

What is the most interesting smell on earth? Not the loveliest—just the most interesting. I would say it would lie between the smell of camp-horated oil, old-fashioned smelling salts, and the smell of an old barn in spring.

Perhaps there ought to be more specialized television networks—say for example, one for the elderly. Those of us whose nerves are taut from watching too many cliffhanging golf, baseball and football battles could relax by tuning in on Station OLD-TV and gander at a quiting bee or a slow-paced shuffleboard contest.

One of the things a thoughtful man wonders about is how girls who wear purple dresses ever manage to get anyone to marry them. It must be that they marry color-blind men. There can't be more than one girl in a hundred who can wear purple and look royal in it; the others simply look like untrimmed and bedraggled lilac bush after a storm—washed out and all wet. It is the hardest of all colors for the average woman to look attractive in.

A reader took umbrage at a recent paragraph here criticizing breaded veal cutlets. He said he had eaten breaded veal cutlets all his life and never felt better. He added that his wife and three children also enjoyed breaded veal cutlets and he credited breaded veal cutlets with playing a major role in keeping the family together. He even enclosed one cooked by his wife's secret recipe. It has been on my cat's plate three days now. Anyone else like breaded veal cutlets?

5 YEARS AGO

The joint effort between Pickaway and Ross Counties to secure an airport to serve both areas was disbanded as the planners were unable to reach a decision on a site suitable to both parties. The only alternative, according to local commissioners, was for Pickaway County to strike out on its own.

Edward C. Wolf died at the age of 87. He had been longtime operator of a grocery store at his residence on the corner of Mount and Washington Sts.

A three-engine freight train approaching Circleville caught fire near the PPG plant south of Circleville. The blaze was extinguished by the city fire crew after much difficulty and damage to the rear engine of the unit.

Gary Liff and Jane Mader were crowned Fair King and Queen for the 1966 county event.

Aware that a new school term was beginning in about a month, City Council injected an "urgent" tone into their conversation about what to do to speed up walkway facilities and improve traffic conditions along Nicholas Drive since the addition of the new high school building there.

Wayne Brown's 935-pound Black Angus steer was judged Grand Champion animal of the Fair's 4-H cattle show. On the auction block, the steer commanded a price of $1.01 per pound.

Mrs. Galen Mowery was holder of the winning ticket that made her the first Fair Queen for a Day and awarded her free admission for her and her family to Friday's fair activities, free admission to the grandstand that day, free chicken dinners, free drycleaning, a carton of light bulbs, six auto lubrications, a floral bouquet, plus a portable television set. The contest was sponsored by Circleville Lions.

A class of dairy goats was judged at the Pickaway County Fair, making the first time goats were exhibited in the livestock competition at the Junior Fair. The entire class was exhibited by Betty Jo and Bonnie Bolender.

A tornado struck north of Circleville Aug. 8 during a severe storm which flooded storm sewers and gutters in the city. Lightning, rain and wind damage was extensive in some areas of Pickaway County.

Death claimed Dr. J. P. Gardner at the age of 77. The doctor was well known for his practice in Kingston and his work with Ross County Harness Horsemen and other national horse associations.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Koch, head of the Pickaway County Childrens Home since 1946, resigned their positions. Applications were being sought by the Welfare Board to find replacements for the couple.

Dear Abby: An Affair, A Divorce And 'True Love'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 41 and Viva, my wife, is 36. After 12 years of marriage, Viva had an affair with a guy at work. (I'll call him Roy.) It wasn't her first affair, and I don't think it will be her last. I couldn't take it anymore, so I divorced her and got our three kids. Meanwhile, Roy's wife wouldn't give him a divorce because she said she wasn't going to deprive their four kids of a father. Viva begged me to go with her and try to talk Roy's wife (I'll call her Minnie) into giving Roy a divorce so he could marry my ex-wife.

I went, and the minute I saw Minnie and she saw me, we knew we were meant for each other, and she says she loves me, but she won't give Roy a divorce. I am going crazy!

So what do I do? Stop seeing Minnie? I can't. I love her. Or do I drive my car off a cliff?

GOING CRAZY
DEAR GOING: Don't look for any cliffs. In time, Minnie will realize that the kind of father she doesn't want to deprive her children of is not worth hanging onto. And if you and Minnie were indeed meant for each other, love will find a way.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a very nice apartment building, and our problem is the couple directly above us. They are "show people" and they don't come alive until 1 a.m. Abby, we know show people have to live, too, but we have to get our sleep between midnight and 7 a.m., and that's the time they do their housecleaning and listen to stereo and TV. And when they have company it's really impossible to sleep.

I have hinted a few times. ("Boy, that must have been some party you had last night!"), but that hasn't helped.

We don't want to get nasty about it, but we were here first, and since our hours are more normal than theirs, we think they should be the ones to either move or hold down the noise. So how do we get this across to them without making enemies? They are really very nice people otherwise.

UP NIGHTS
DEAR UP: Quit hinting and let them know that they are disturbing you. But don't expect instant silence. It's practically impossible to hold down the noise of normal living.

DEAR ABBY: I want to know if there is any way I can get either a legal separation or a divorce without having to spend a fortune. I could pay a few hundred dollars, but no more. EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch is by an Associated Press reporting team which has been studying drug traffic in and around Vietnam.

SAIGON (AP) — It was a scene long familiar in the war. Infantrymen lined the banks of a canal, their weapons trained on three boats in the coastal village of Rach Gia, where Viet Cong are known to roam.

But this was not a clash between the South Vietnamese army and the guerrillas. Both the infantrymen and the men on the boats were government forces. They were on opposing sides in a contest for a very special cargo: one of the largest drug shipments ever seized in Vietnam.

The July 26 confrontation, not described before in detail, highlights one of the problems of curbing the traffic of drugs to American GIs here:

A month-long study of the drug traffic in Asia produced these major conclusions:

—Chinese living in Southeast Asia form the well-buffered top level of narcotics traffic.

—The traffic operates with the tolerance and sometimes the cooperation of some South Vietnamese generals.

—The heroin is an end product of opium grown in safety in remote upland regions of Burma, Thailand and Laos; with Burma ranking No. 1. Meo tribesmen there harvest and produce an estimated 600 tons of opium a year.

The narcotics traffic is so deeply woven into the social and economic fabric of Southeast Asia that it has become a sort of native industry on which many depend for a livelihood.

At the center of the tense 15-minute confrontation in Rach Gia was a sampan carrying narcotics agents and part of the largest seizure of heroin and opium in Southeast Asia.

The agents called for infantry help when, according to a police official, three South Vietnamese navy speedboats tried to free two sailors arrested in the raid and also take the drug haul for their own profit.

With 100 infantrymen lined up on each side of the canal, the Navy boats backed off and the seizure was completed, according to agents who were at the scene.

Since then, South Vietnamese authorities have said nothing publicly about the arrested navy men or any investigation of their higher-ups.

Details of the incident were pieced together through interviews with American, Thai and Vietnamese police, officials and narcotics agents.

"We were sure the navy men wanted to capture the sacks of pure heroin and prepared opium which were found hidden in Rach Gia," said Col. Prumual Vanhbandhu, head of the Thai narcotics police in Bangkok.

Rach Gia was one of the key spots struck in the course of a 48-hour raid in which three nations—Thailand, United States and South Vietnam—took part for the first time. The 50 kilos of pure heroin had a market value of $4 million.

In one phase of the operation, agents seized a Chu Chow Chinese—a group referred to as the Chinese "Mafia"—named Tap Vinh. The wealthy owner of a Saigon plastics factory, he was accused of being the financier and brains behind a major narcotics ring.

The Americans made no arrests. They have no authority to do so, though there is new urgency to American efforts to curb the flow of drugs. But they were with the Vietnamese special narcotics police who arrested a total of 10 Chinese and 15 Vietnamese, including the 2 South Vietnamese sailors.

With the seizure of the heroin and opium, authorities were able to put together the jigsaw pieces making up a secret, illegal narcotics smuggling ring characteristic of Asian drug traffic.

"The opium was harvested in Burma, in the uplands of the Shan State area," said Col. Prumual. This is territory in the hands of insurgents and remnants of left-behind units of the Nationalist Chinese Koutintang forces.

The KMT oversaw, for a fee, the caravans hauling raw opium to processing refineries in the Ban Houei Sai border district of Laos.

"We determined from records seized at Tap Vinh's factory that the heroin was aimed for the American GI market in Vietnam and there is sound reason to believe the opium was for Asian users," said the colonel.

The shipment moved along Thailand's Nong Kai Highway, getting through some 47 checkpoints undetected, to Paknam, the Bangkok port, where it was loaded in 22 sacks aboard a Thai fishing vessel. The boat put out to the Gulf of Thailand and on May-3 it rendezvoused off the little island, Polonanyant, with a Vietnamese fishing boat which took on the cargo.

The large cache was split into seven loads and hidden mostly in Rach Gia and on Phu Quoc Island.

In Tap Vinh's operation, according to enforcement officials, once the heroin reached Saigon it would filter toward the Americans through its buffer echelons. He had five key subordinates, also Chu Chow Chinese, through whom it would first pass. Then it would go to wholesalers, who receive it in 350 gram plastic bags and buy it in "packs." A pack consists of two 350-gram bags. Then it would go to Vietnamese retailers, who break it down into small vials containing from one quarter to one third gram of heroin. The street peddlers, bar girls, cycle drivers and usual street people then sell to the users.

Windstorms Strike Lakes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cool weather extended over much of the Great Lakes region today in the wake of severe thunderstorms and high winds that battered numerous communities Tuesday.

Several tornadoes crisscrossed lower Michigan, causing several injuries and widespread minor damage.

Nine National Guardsmen suffered minor injuries at Camp Grayling, Mich., when high winds, heavy rain and hail smashed through the encampment, flattening an estimated 300 tents. Two helicopters at the camp's airfield also were damaged by the 60 mile-an-hour winds.

At Racine, Wis., a teen-ager was killed by lightning late Tuesday during a violent thunderstorm with wind gusts up to 95 m.p.h. that swept sections of Wisconsin.

A severe thunderstorm also ripped Chicago Tuesday, downing power lines in some sections of the city. Only minor damage was reported.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 51 at Bismarck, N.D., to 93 at Daggett, Calif.

Dear Abby: An Affair, A Divorce And 'True Love'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 41 and Viva, my wife, is 36. After 12 years of marriage, Viva had an affair with a guy at work. (I'll call him Roy.) It wasn't her first affair, and I don't think it will be her last. I couldn't take it anymore, so I divorced her and got our three kids. Meanwhile, Roy's wife wouldn't give him a divorce because she said she wasn't going to deprive their four kids of a father. Viva begged me to go with her and try to talk Roy's wife (I'll call her Minnie) into giving Roy a divorce so he could marry my ex-wife.

I went, and the minute I saw Minnie and she saw me, we knew we were meant for each other, and she says she loves me, but she won't give Roy a divorce. I am going crazy! So what do I do? Stop seeing Minnie? I can't. I love her. Or do I drive my car off a cliff?

GOING CRAZY
DEAR GOING: Don't look for any cliffs. In time, Minnie will realize that the kind of father she doesn't want to deprive her children of is not worth hanging onto. And if you and Minnie were indeed meant for each other, love will find a way.

DEAR ABBY: We live in a very nice apartment building, and our problem is the couple directly above us. They are "show people" and they don't come alive until 1 a.m. Abby, we know show people have to live, too, but we have to get our sleep between midnight and 7 a.m., and that's the time they do their housecleaning and listen to stereo and TV. And when they have company it's really impossible to sleep.

I have hinted a few times. ("Boy, that must have been some party you had last night!"), but that hasn't helped. We don't want to get nasty about it, but we were here first, and since our hours are more normal than theirs, we think they should be the ones to either move or hold down the noise. So how do we get this across to them without making enemies? They are really very nice people otherwise.

UP NIGHTS
DEAR UP: Quit hinting and let them know that they are disturbing you. But don't expect instant silence. It's practically impossible to hold down the noise of normal living.

DEAR ABBY: I want to know if there is any way I can get either a legal separation or a divorce without having to spend a fortune. I could pay a few hundred dollars, but no more. I do not qualify for legal aid because my husband makes too much money. Of course what HE makes is not doing me any good because he refuses to give me any money, and I have none of my own. Baker Sculpts In Sugar

SERVE THEM HOT — Stuffed peaches are filled with a mixture of pecans, honey and ginger.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

American cooks have been using fresh peaches in cobbblers, buckles and poundcakes for years. And fresh peach pie is one of our summertime staples.

But cooks in other countries — especially Italy and France — often poach or bake them. Here then is a recipe for Baked Stuffed Peaches — the stuffing a mixture of honey, pecans and candied ginger. To keep the peaches from getting dark, the recipe suggests that you use ascorbic acid mixture, available in cans, as a deterrent.

BACKED STUFFED PEACHES
8 medium-size ripe peaches, about 1 1/4 pounds

1 tablespoon ascorbic acid mixture, from a 5-ounce can
1/4 cup chilled honey
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
3 tablespoons finely chopped candied ginger
1/4 cup room-temperature honey

Rinse peaches in cold water; place in a mixing bowl and cover with cold water; remove peaches and set aside. Add the ascorbic acid mixture to the cold water and stir until dissolved; set aside.

In a small mixing bowl mix together the 1/4 cup chilled honey, the pecans and ginger; refrigerate.

In another mixing bowl or saucepan cover peaches with boiling water and let stand off heat until skins will slip off easily — about 2 minutes. Drain peaches and run cold water over them; remove skins, cut into halves and remove pits. Place peaches in the ascorbic acid mixture immediately after preparing. Let stand in solution for 2 minutes. Drain peaches, reserving 1/4 cup of the ascorbic acid liquid.

Mound a spoonful of the nut mixture in cavity of each of 8 peach halves. Replace remaining 8 peach halves to form whole peaches. Press the halves firmly together and secure with toothpicks. Place stuffed peaches in an oblong glass 1 1/2-quart baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 1/4 inches) or similar utensil.

In a small sauce pan mix reserved 1/4 cup ascorbic acid liquid with 1/4 cup room-temperature honey. Bring to a boil and pour over peaches. Cover with foil and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven until peaches are tender — about 30 minutes. Remove picks from peaches. Serve at once with custard sauce, vanilla ice cream or sweetened whipped cream.

Makes 8 servings.

ETIENNE THOLONIAT — "The King Of Sugar" puts the finishing touches on one of his sculptures made of sugar.

Stuff Those Fresh Peaches

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — "Madame, the Eiffel Tower is served."

But if you'd prefer a gazebo, a Boeing 707 or simply Notre Dame, Etienne Tholoniati, "the king of sugar," will whip it up for you.

"A client can ask me to make anything. I always say yes and worry about how to do it later," says Tholoniati. He even makes three versions of the Eiffel Tower — simplified for $40, stylized for $100 and in full detail for $200. Queen Elizabeth chose the last.

A self-taught artist, he has through trial and breakage over 15 years learned how to create sculptures from sugar. The big pieces he molds cold "like pie-crust." But his forte is the hot medium. He cooks the sugar at 300 degrees, pours it onto a marble slab and pulls it with his hands until it takes on a satiny sheen.

"Then I get to work," says Tholoniati. In his workshop on the rue Chateau d'Eau, he can turn out 40 roses in an hour if he is in a good mood. His Concorde, timed for its launch three years ago, is striped in blue, windowed in green and nestled on a bed of roses.

However, he is only the sugar king after noon. At dawn, he turns back into a baker and starts drudging with the dough. As prevot general of the maitres patissiers of France, he tours through Europe teaching pastry-makers their own business and gives a monthly lesson to the students at the Cordon Bleu.

"I eat tons of pastry, because in this field you have to be a bit gourmand," he says. "When I take a trip, the first thing I do is look for a beautiful bakery. Sometimes I even eat too much."

Dorcas Class Honors Guests At Luncheon

The Rev. and Mrs. Roy Osborn were hosts to Dorcas Class of Calvary United Methodist Church recently. An old-fashioned turkey luncheon preceded the meeting attended by 16 members and five guests.

Mrs. Russell Lape, president, presided over the business session. A motion was made to send a memorial gift to the Otterbein Home for the Aged in memory of Mrs. James Stewart, a member of the class who recently died. A motion was also made to transfer the balance of the memorial fund to the general fund and in the future make all memorial donations from the general fund.

Many members brought clippings of famous women or about one who made or did something outstanding. One was Lady Linn who was an ambassador and lawyer. Another was Sarah Joseph who proclaimed Thanksgiving Day a holiday and wrote the book "Mary Lamb"; she became editor of Ladies Magazine. She later used her influence to secure employment of medical missionaries before her death in 1879.

For devotions Mrs. Talmer Wise read Scripture and Mrs. Roy Osborn presented prayer. Mrs. Wise then used Scripture from the 37th Psalm. Myrtle Leist read "A Pattern" and "What You Is" was read by Mrs. Mark DeLong. Mrs. Wise closed the devotions with prayer.

cards were signed by the class to be sent to Mrs. Leona Valentine, Mrs. Anna Fricke and Mrs. Ida Franklin.

The next meeting will be a covered-dish luncheon at noon on Wednesday, Sept. 1st in the church basement.

Guests for the luncheon were the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Osborn Sr. of Columbus and Mrs. Evelyn Carter.

American cooks have been using fresh peaches in cobbler, buckles and pandowdies for years. And fresh peach pie is one of our summertime staples. But cooks in other countries — especially Italy and France — often poach or bake them. Here then is a recipe for Baked Stuffed Peaches — the stuffing a mixture of honey, pecans and candied ginger. To keep the peaches from getting dark, the recipe suggests that you use ascorbic acid mixture, available in cans, as a deterrent.

BACKED STUFFED PEACHES

8 medium-size ripe peaches, about 1 1/4 pounds
1 tablespoon ascorbic acid mixture, from a 5-ounce can
1/4 cup chilled honey
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
3 tablespoons finely chopped candied ginger
1/4 cup room-temperature honey

Rinse peaches in cold water; place in a mixing bowl and cover with cold water; remove peaches and set aside. Add the ascorbic acid mixture to the cold water and stir until dissolved; set aside.

In a small mixing bowl mix together the 1/4 cup chilled honey, the pecans and ginger; refrigerate.

In another mixing bowl or saucepan cover peaches with boiling water and let stand off heat until skins will slip off easily — about 2 minutes. Drain peaches and run cold water over them; remove skins, cut into halves and remove pits. Place peaches in the ascorbic acid mixture immediately after preparing. Let stand in solution for 2 minutes. Drain peaches, reserving 1/4 cup of the ascorbic acid liquid.

Mound a spoonful of the nut mixture in cavity of each of 8 peach halves. Replace remaining 8 peach halves to form whole peaches. Press the halves firmly together and secure with toothpicks. Place stuffed peaches in an oblong glass 1 1/2-quart baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 1/4 inches) or similar utensil.

In a small sauce pan mix reserved 1/4 cup ascorbic acid liquid with 1/4 cup room-temperature honey. Bring to a boil and pour over peaches. Cover with foil and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven until peaches are tender — about 30 minutes. Remove picks from peaches. Serve at once with custard sauce, vanilla ice cream or sweetened whipped cream.

Makes 8 servings.

ETIENNE THOLIAAT — "The King Of Sugar" puts the finishing touches on one of his sculptures made of sugar.

Stuff Those Fresh Peaches

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — "Madame, the Eiffel Tower is served." But if you'd prefer a gazebo, a Boeing 707 or simply Notre Dame, Etienne Tholiat, "the king of sugar," will whip it up for you.

"A client can ask me to make anything. I always say yes and worry about how to do it later," says Tholiat. He even makes three versions of the Eiffel Tower — simplified for $40, stylized for $100 and in full detail for $200. Queen Elizabeth chose the last.

A self-taught artist, he has through trial and breakage over 15 years learned how to create sculptures from sugar. The big pieces he molds cold "like pie crust." But his forte is the hot medium. He cooks the sugar at 300 degrees, pours it onto a marble slab and pulls it with his hands until it takes on a satiny sheen.

"Then I get to work," says Tholiat. In his workshop on the rue Chateau d'Eau, he can turn out 40 roses in an hour if he is in a good mood. His Concorde, timed for its launching three years ago, is striped in blue, windowed in green and nestled on a bed of roses. However, he is only the sugar king after noon. At dawn, he turns back into a baker and starts drugging with the dough. As prevot general of the maitres patissiers of France, he tours through Europe teaching pastry-makers their own business and gives a monthly lesson to the students at the Cordon Bleu.

"I eat tons of pastry, because in this field you have to be a bit gourmand," he says. "When I take a trip, the first thing I do is look for a beautiful bakery. Sometimes I even eat too much."

Dorcas Class Honors Guests At Luncheon

The Rev. and Mrs. Roy Osborn were hosts to Dorcas Class of Calvary United Methodist Church recently. An old-fashioned turkey luncheon preceded the meeting attended by 16 members and five guests.

Mrs. Russell Lape, president, presided over the business session. A motion was made to send a memorial gift to the Otterbein Home for the Aged in memory of Mrs. James Stewart, a member of the class who recently died. A motion was also made to transfer the balance of the memorial fund to the general fund and in the future make all memorial donations from the general fund.

Many members brought clippings of famous women or about one who made or did something outstanding. One was Lady Linn who was an ambassador and lawyer. Another was Sarah Joseph who proclaimed Thanksgiving Day a holiday and wrote the book "Mary Lamb"; she became editor of Ladies Magazine. She later used her influence to secure employment of medical missionaries before her death in 1879.

For devotions Mrs. Talmer Wise read Scripture and Mrs. Roy Osborn presented prayer. Mrs. Wise then used Scripture from the 37th Psalm. Myrtle Leist read "A Pattern" and "What You Is" was read by Mrs. Mark DeLong. Mrs. Wise closed the devotions with prayer.

Get well and remembrance cards were signed by the class to be sent to Mrs. Leona Valentine, Mrs. Anna Friece and Mrs. Ida Franklin.

The next meeting will be a covered-dish luncheon at noon on Wednesday, Sept. 1st in the church basement.

Games played were won by Annett Lape, Gladys Hatfield and Mrs. Roy Osborn Sr.

Guests for the luncheon were the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Osborn Sr. of Columbus and Mrs. Evelyn Carter.

Low-Pollution Automobiles Go Into Use

BOSTON (AP) — "You could get your face right next to the exhaust and not see or smell anything," a government inspector said of low-pollution cars, being put into use by the General Services Administration.

"These cars are about 95 per cent emission-free," added Robert W. Kelly, an automotive inspector for the GSA.

Eleven of the vehicles—powered by liquid natural gas—were put into service this week by the GSA and long-range plans call for the agency to convert all of its 49,500 vehicles across the country within the next five years. Eighty-nine more are expected to be ready here within a few months.

The fuel system, however, still is—at best—some distance from the public market.

Under the Clean Air Act of 1970, manufacturers are required to produce a virtually pollution-free auto by 1976. But automakers have said it will be impossible to mass produce a substitute for the internal combustion engine in that time.

"Detroit is watching this experiment closely," said Robert L. Kunzig, GSA administrator. "Perhaps Detroit will come up with something similar, or better."

The government cars have their liquid natural gas stored—at 259 degrees below zero—in an insulated 20 gallon tank in the trunk. The gas cost the government about 16 cents a gallon, the same price it pays—tax free—for regular gasoline. The gas is purchased from a local company and stored in a fuel truck at the GSA center.

Mileage is about the same as regular gasoline, but there is no lead in the fuel and less wear on the engine.

Women's Groups Ask Court To OK Medical Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven women's groups and several well-known women have asked the Supreme Court to protect "the right of reproductive autonomy" by permitting medical abortions everywhere in the United States.

In a friend-of-court brief in cases from Georgia and Texas, the organizations and 47 women, including anthropologist Margaret Mead, said they were not advocating abortion as a necessarily desirable solution to personal or social problems.

"We do contend, however," they said through an attorney, "that each woman has the right to make the decision for herself, unimpeded by restrictive laws" except for those regulating the practice of medicine.

Later this year the court will hear arguments on the Georgia and Texas cases whose central issue is whether states may continue to say which abortions are legal and which are not. Before that, however, the court must decide if it has jurisdiction to rule.

Organizations filing the brief were the American Association of University Women, the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States, the National Organization for Women, the National Women's Conference of the American Ethical Union, the Professional Women's Caucus, the Unitarian Universalist Women's Federation and the Women's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church of Dallas. These have millions of women as members with more than 2½ million in the YMCA alone.

The individuals include Miss Mead, Marian B. Javits, wife of the New York senator, Mary H. Lindsay, wife of the New York City mayor, former Sen. Maureen B. Neuberger of Oregon, former Barnard College President Millicent C. McIntosh, columnist Harriet Van Horne and Bess Myerson, a former Miss America who is consumer affairs commissioner of New York City.

They said through lawyer Norman G. Zarky of Los Angeles that "the right of reproductive autonomy—the right to decide when and where to have children—is at least equal to and in most instances even more deserving of recognition" than various civil rights already protected by the court including racial intermarriage and the right of a poor person to sue for divorce.

The brief said fundamental rights of women are in conflict with the laws of nearly all states.

Modern Teaching Methods Buoy Student Achievement

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Experiments with new teaching techniques produced improved student achievement and better attendance, according to a survey of Ohio school superintendents.

The survey, conducted by the Commission on Public School Personnel Policies, showed that more than two-thirds of the districts in the state are trying new techniques, including team teaching and use of teacher aides.

Some 63 per cent of the superintendents responding said improved student achievement resulted from the new techniques, and 23 per cent reported improved student attendance.

The commission sent questionnaires to all 631 school superintendents in the state, with 422, or 67 per cent, responding. Seventy per cent of the superintendents said they favored changes in the traditional one-teacher-per-classroom public school setup.

The survey results forfeited earlier commission recommendations for greater flexibility in school staffing.

Commission Chairman Stephen Stranahan of Toledo called the survey a "gratifying confirmation that Ohio is ready, indeed eager, to break out of time-worn molds and establish classroom patterns which meet the needs of our children and their teachers."

The 16-member commission is made up of civic and business leaders. The body's activities are funded by contributions from nine Ohio foundations.

Asks Bingo Stoppage Until Legality Set

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Hamilton Police Chief George McNally has asked that all bingo games in the city be stopped until the law director can issue a ruling on their legality.

McNally said Tuesday that his office has contacted operators of regularly scheduled bingo games to make the request. McNally said he has directed members of the police department not to work at bingo games on their off-duty hours.

Lightning Blamed In Trailer Fire

Lake Erie Sewage Plan Is Advanced

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A U.S. Army Corps of Engineers study proposes piping sewage from seven Northeast Ohio counties 60 to 90 miles south for disposal through a system that would return sewage nutrients to the soil as fertilizer, the Cleveland Plain Dealer said today.

U.S. Rep. William H. Harsha, R-Ohio, has introduced legislation to develop comprehensive plans for "a revolutionary system of waste treatment" for use by the state and local governments as an alternative to conventional methods, the newspaper said.

The system would use known methods of disposal, but would return nutrients to the soil rather than flush them into Lake Erie. Harsha, ranking Republican on the House Public Works Committee, said the bill directs the Corps of Engineers to develop a pilot waste management program "for the rehabilitation and environmental repair of Lake Erie."

The proposal calls for sending sewage from Cuyahoga, Lake, Geauga, Summit, Portage, Medina and Lorain counties to either Columbiana County, to the southwest, or Richland County, to the southeast.

Officials of Columbiana and Richland counties have expressed opposition to the proposal.

FREE BOOKLET LET'S HAVE A PORKEQUE!

If you like outdoor cooking, but are tired of the usual barbecue fare, why not have a Porkeque? Pork is delicious, easy and something different to prepare on the grill. Select rib, loin or butterfly pork chops, cut 1 to 1½ inches thick. Place on grill 5 inches (or as high as possible) above coals.
Broil at low to moderate temperature 10 minutes longer or until well done. If desired, brush chops with a barbecue sauce during broiling.
Season to taste.

For a free booklet containing other delicious grilled pork recipes, such as South-Of-The-Border Spareribs, write to me, Betty Brown, 770 West Goodale, Blvd., Columbus, Ohio, 43212.

Mrs. Georgia Sweet — 869-2462

Mr. and Mrs. Warner Hamet of Sarasota, Fla., spent the past week visiting with Mrs. Charles Nance. Mrs. Ernest Deyo and sister, Mary Thomas, both of Huntington, W. Va., also spent several days visiting with Mrs. Nance, leaving for home on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Jude of Clark's Lake, are proud parents of a son born on July 31.

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Warner Hamet, Mrs. Charles Nance and Miss Grace Minshall took a trip to Chillicothe and had dinner at the Bob Evans Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Downs and children have moved to their new home near Derby and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Writsel now reside in the former Downs residence.

Full Docket Swamps Panel On Pollution

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Faced with a backlog of 1,000 permit applications, the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board may start appointing attorneys to hear cases and recommend board action.

The board asked the attorney general's office Tuesday to draft plans for such a procedure, which is permitted by existing regulations and used by other departments that grant permits.

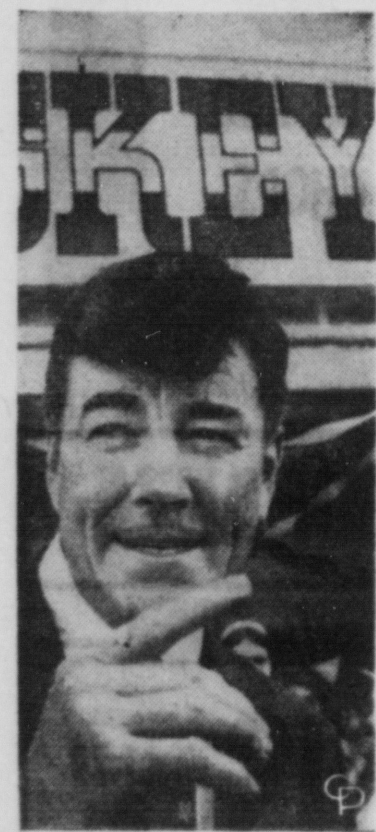

Hearing officers would examine applications for water discharge permits and then prepare a report and recommendations for the board, which would make the final decision.

The board could conduct its own hearing if it wanted more information.

In other action Tuesday, the board gave the Empire Detroit Steel Division of the Cyclops Corp. in Mansfield until Jan. 11 to complete and start operating facilities for eliminating acid rinse water discharges.

Spokesmen for the company told the board the division now is neutralizing the acid rinse water and hauling away any concentrated acid wastes.

Adrien Reynolds, manager of engineering, and Donald Kinkor, supervisor of environmental control for the firm, said facilities to totally eliminate the discharges into Rocky Fork Creek will be built by Jan. 1.

"GIANT KILLER" — Hoping to be the political giant killer of 1972, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., opens his New Hampshire campaign headquarters in Concord. He will challenge President Nixon on the Southeast Asia war issue. New Hampshire will hold the nation's first presidential primary some seven months from now.

Nixon, Advisers Cruise Potomac

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was joined by several of his top staff members for a Tuesday night cruise on the Potomac River and it appeared to be a political gathering.

With him on the yacht Sequoia were Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Henry Dent, Nixon's special counsel. The presence of the two indicated the cruise may have been political since Mitchell was Nixon's 1968 campaign manager and Dent is one of the President's top political advisers.

Others on hand included Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief adviser on national security affairs and evangelist Billy Graham, a personal friend.

Last weekend Mr. and Mrs. Warner Hamet and Mrs. Lillian Nance watched the Derby

Homecoming parade and later on Saturday enjoyed dinner at the Green Gables Restaurant in Columbus. On Monday, the Hamets left for Bryan, Ohio, to visit other friends and relatives.

If your children are bored with summertime, perhaps they would like to spend the week with us at Vacation Bible School at the Southwest Church of the Nazarene. It is on Ballah Road off Route 62 between Harrisburg and Derby. Classes will begin Aug. 16 - 20 from 9:30 a.m. to noon. All children from ages 3-12 are welcome to attend.

Also a reminder about swimming lessons being offered at Clark's Lake starting this week Aug. 9, for beginners and advanced beginners along with a life-saving course. The life-saving class is offered to qualify residents for life-saving techniques.

Students new in Westfall schools for the first time may register starting Aug. 17 at all schools in the Westfall area. Bring along proof of birth and immunization records required by state. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Children must be six and over as of September 1 in order to enroll.

On Aug. 7 Miss Linla Pennington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pennington of Columbus and Chester Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dawson of Derby, were united in marriage in the Frank Road Church of the Nazarene. The ceremony was solemnized at 7:30 p.m. with a reception following the service. The couple will reside in Ashville. Anna Louise Dawson, sister of the groom, was the flower girl.

Birthday greetings to: Darlene Richardson, Aug. 8;

There were no reports of injuries or serious damage in Ohio, although lower Michigan reported several injuries and widespread, minor property damage.

Severe thunderstorm alerts were issued for much of northern Ohio Tuesday night and early this morning, but the last of the warnings was lifted shortly before 3 a.m.

One tornado sighting west of Hicksville in Defiance County was confirmed by a deputy sheriff.

By daybreak the cold front stretched across northwestern Ohio. By evening it was expected to move southeast out of the state.

Temperatures at dawn ranged from 65 at Akron-Canton Airport to 74 at Marietta.

The National Weather Service says cooler, less humid weather will follow passage of the front. Lows tonight will drop into the 50s and low 60s.

Sunny skies with temperatures in the 70s and low 80s are forecast Thursday.

No. 95 Two States got rid of governors in 1871 under provisions in their constitutions modeled after an original clause in the Federal Constitution, (Article II, Section IV): "The President, Vice President and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on impeachment for, and conviction of, Treason, W. W. Holden and autograph, from Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography.

Bribery, or other High Crimes and Misdemeanors."

Article I, Section 3, granting the Senate sole power to try all impeachments of Federal civil officers, stipulates, "Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit . . ."

Governors removed by impeachment in 1871 were David P. Butler of Nebraska, found guilty of appropriating school funds for himself, and William Woods Holden, who had undertaken to suppress the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina. After Democrats regained control of the legislature in 1870 elections, a variety of charges were made against Holden.

Holden failed to secure aid from the Republican administration in Washington, and went to work there as an editor of The Morning Chronicle. In 1872, an election year, President Grant wanted to send him to Peru, as U.S. Minister, but Holden declined. However, the next year, after Grant's re-election, he secured the Presidential appointment as postmaster at the North Carolina capital. Thus he was there in 1873 when the legislature passed an act for amnesty and pardon for members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Four decades later, William Sulzer was impeached and removed as New York governor, and subsequently governors were removed in Texas and Oklahoma.

NOTE: Constitutions of a number of States, and charters of some cities, provide for Recall Elections of office-holders before the expiration of the statutory term. A recall election is mandatory within a specified time when the required number of petitioners has been secured. The fate of the official is usually determined in competition with a candidate nominated against him.

Some constitutions and charters include Initiative, a means of enacting legislation by popular vote when it is blocked in legislatures by lobbyists. There also are some provisions for Referendum, whereby legislation may be annulled by popular vote.

Stock Thefts May Bring End To Paper Certificates

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — That exquisitely engraved and much coveted example of 19th century folk art, the American stock certificate, may soon be nudged toward oblivion, partially as the result of enormous thefts.

In official Washington the nudging is coming from such sources as the Securities and Exchange Commission.

But the real impetus lies in more than 2,700 pages of testimony before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee outlining organized crime's dominance of a racket estimated by the Justice Department to have involved stock losses totaling $900 million in the last 2½ years.

Subcommittee sources say it is unlikely legislation will be introduced to eliminate the stock certificate entirely, at least not now. Advocates of that step foresee a computerized stock market with selling and buying conducted without the actual certificates in a book-entry system.

Although the subcommittee's conclusions have not been written and the hearings are not over, it is reported senators may ask for commissioning of a government study into the ket without certificates.

It is likely, however, the subcommittee will recommend creation of a central clearing house which can collect, computerize and immediately distribute data on stolen and missing securities to the nation's banks and brokerage houses.

The Justice Department has such a reporting service for law-enforcement agencies in its National Crime Information Center. But access to it is barred to financial institutions.

The agency reported late last week that $494 million in securities were reported stolen and lost in the first six months of the year.

In the early stages of the hearings, the New York Police Department and representatives of the New York Stock Exchange and -brokerage houses complained that court decisions limited the FBI in passing on fingerprint information on prospective employees.

But subcommittee staff members say the government now is involved directly because of a new commitment to guarantee stockbrokers' accounts much as the government has insured bank deposits. "The government has a stake and a right to contact said.

Thus, legislation may be considered opening FBI fingerprint files to employers in financial institutions, a subject likely to attract much debate because of possible privacy violations involved.

Computer System Relieves Hospital Paperwork Load

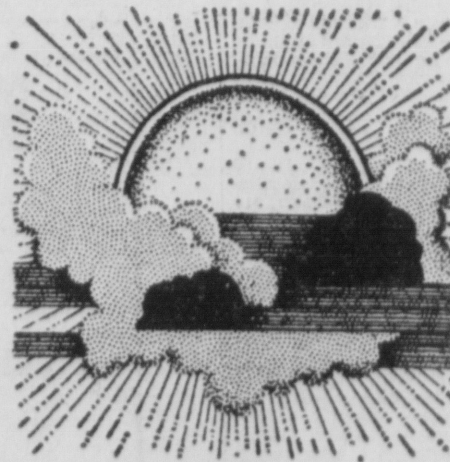

CINCINNATI (AP) — A centralized computer system is now helping pharmacies at seven hospitals of the Franciscan Sisters of the Poor keep track of doses of more than 300 drugs.

"Our new system provides daily lists of amount of medication administered, by patient and by type of drug," said John Robinson, director of the Franciscan hospitals Datacenter. "This gives the pharmacies better control over the narcotic and drug abuse items dispensed."

The system, with its main computer here, was installed in compliance with the new federal narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Law requiring hospitals to maintain records on more than 300 drugs.

"This would have caused an enormous paperwork problem for the pharmacies at each hospital," Robinson said. "Even before the government tripled the number of drugs to be logged, the pharmacies were being swamped with forms and records."

Hospitals participating in the program are St. Francis and Providence in Cincinnati; St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Dayton, Ohio; St. Anthony's in Columbus, Ohio; St. Elizabeth's in Covington, Ky.; Our Lady of Bellefonte, Russell, Ky.; and St. Margaret's in Kansas City, Kan. Another Cincinnati Hospital, St. George, will join the program soon.

Since 1960, on the average, we've reduced carbon monoxide emissions from our engines by about two-thirds. Hydrocarbons have been cut a full 80%. And all our engines now run efficiently on the new low-lead or no-lead gasolines.

In fact, if all cars on the road had the emission controls of the new Chevrolets and if all industries made similar strides, we'd be breathing air as fresh as it was in 1940.

New Office Building Won't Solve Space Problem

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If the $56 million state office building under construction in Columbus were finished tomorrow, the state would still need another building of approximately equal size to take care of present space needs.

As it stands now, the 40-story building will be completed in 1973, and there are no plans yet for another one.

George Busche, who heads the Ohio Building Authority, said that even after completion of the new facility, the state will still be leasing $2.2 million worth of private office space it now holds in Columbus.

Busche said agencies and departments moving into the new building will be able to get rid of offices they now rent at an annual cost of $775,507.

But he said this gain will be cancelled by projected expansion of other departments, all of which will require new leased space.

Busche said two factors are chiefly responsible for the outside space needs, despite the fact that 800,000 square feet will be provided in the new office building.

First, much of the new space will be used to replace state-owned offices that are either to be vacated or torn down and therefore will not provide any

Court Shuts Off Newark Polluter

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Common Pleas Judge Walter Bolton criticized the practice of issuing permits to pollute Tuesday while ordering a suburban Newark utility company to stop discharging inadequately treated sewage.

"We can no longer continue to permit, or to issue permits, for the pollution of our water, whatever the reason," Bolton said in issuing a temporary injunction against the Forest Hills Utility Co.

Bolton's comment was in response to the defendant's claim that under a section of Ohio law the state has no right to terminate a permit once it has been issued.

The Licking County judge said any court "reviewing the constitutionality of this chapter would necessarily and immediately conclude that the issuance of any permits to any person or company to discharge sewage into waters ... constitutes a rather fantastic violation of the public welfare."

additional state-owned offices.

These buildings include the Statehouse Annex which houses the attorney general's office and the Ohio Supreme Court, the old school for the deaf, where the Health and Welfare departments are now located, and the old Wyandotte Building on Broad Street.

Second, state departments are expanding at a faster rate than had been projected when the state conducted a study of space requirements in 1966.

"The projections were right on the money through 1970," Busche said. "But it appears the present administration is growing faster than the study indicated it might."

The space requirements of the Department of Taxation appears to be the biggest unknown the building authority must contend with.

The department is marked down for about 2 floors in the new building. But Busche said if the General Assembly passes the proposed state income tax, the department could get another two floors, and department officials have said they could use more.

Other departments which administer expanding federal programs also appear to be growing faster than was earlier predicted, Busche said.

The 1966 space study predicted that the state would need $1.4 million square feet of new space by 1975.

The new building will provide 800,000 square feet, and Busche said that without taking unforeseen expansion into account, the state could use another 600,000 to 800,000 square feet now.

"At this stage we need to plan for goes up and down."

another building right now," Busche said. He said no planning has begun and no site has been considered. "We're hoping to get something under way in the next six months or sooner if possible."

Occupants of the new building, under the present stacking plan were chosen in the following manner, Busche said.

Occupants of the new building, which the Legislature said it wanted torn down, were chosen first.

Next, departments were included which, for administrative reasons, must be located near the state auditor or the Finance Department, also to be located in the new building. These include the Public Works and Personnel departments.

After that, departments were considered on the basis of how badly their present quarters have deteriorated. Among these, Busche said, are the Health and Welfare departments.

"The old deaf school was our worst situation," Busche said. "It's falling down around our ears."

He said other buildings are in equally bad shape. "Everything we do in them is illegal," Busche said of conditions in some buildings. "Anyone else could not get away with them except the state."

He recalled one incident last year in which a state messenger stepped through the open lobby door of the Wyandotte Building elevator and fell two floors to the basement, breaking a leg.

That elevator presently has no inner door to keep occupants from being injured as the elevator goes up and down.

The next category for choosing who would get space in the new facility was for agencies like the Taxation, Liquor Control and Insurance departments, which occupy inadequate or poorly-designed leased space.

"The rent is cheap in some cases," Busche said, "but we have to maintain the buildings." He said the state spent $300,000 last year on the former deaf school alone. That building is state-owned.

Busche said the problem is further complicated by department heads who attempt to make their own leasing arrangements in effort to get more space.

"Everybody's a prima donna," he said. "Everybody wants to go his own way. Somebody has to corral them."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Reaction to 1971's most controversial television program continues with no middle ground: Viewers either love it or hate it. But any resemblance between the character of Archie Bunker of CBS' "All in the Family" and the veteran actor who plays him, Carroll O'Connor, is purely physical.

Archie is the embodiment of all the prejudices that have come to mean bigotry and racism. His appearance in a television series has been hailed on one side as healthy exposure while others suggest that he reinforces the narrow minded.

O'Connor won his bachelor's degree from the National University of Ireland, and his master's from the University of Montana. While his politics are private, his outlook generally is liberal and cosmopolitan.

"I'm not a member of any political party," O'Connor said, almost reluctantly. "I really don't care much for politics, and I just don't know what words like 'conservative' and 'liberal' mean anymore."

"When Roosevelt was president, a lot of people thought that a 'liberal' was pro-labor, pro-welfare and wanted to take care of people and a 'conservative' was pro big business and antiwelfare. Now it is all mixed up."

O'Connor, rehearsing for one of next season's "All in the Family" episodes added:

"I grew up in New York, but I never heard Archie's kind of talk in my own family. Mine was a family of teachers—my mother, an aunt and an uncle. My father was a lawyer and was in partnership with two Jews, who with their families were close to us. There were two black families in our circle of friends. My father disliked talk like Archie's—he called it the hallmark of ignorance."

O'Connor's interest is in building Archie's character—"bigots have dimensions," he said with a grin.

"I've been told that Archie is a sort of hero to racists," he said. "What the hell! Let them have a hero, and if a foolish fellow like Archie is their hero in spite of this changed world, more's the pity."

Constant viewers of the series, including those who deplore Archie's attitudes, find themselves warming to the blustery character. O'Connor seems to be fond of him—and one suspects that although Archie will keep right on making cracks about polacks and hebes he is going to be more lovable and—hopefully—funny when the series starts its first full season next month.

Mead To Improve Waste Treatment

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Plans for a $3.2 million project to improve paper mill waste treatment facilities here have been announced by the Mead Corp.

When work is completed in 1974, Mead officials said, about 90 per cent of all solids and organic matter will be removed from the mill's discharges into Paint Creek and the Scioto River.

The project will be financed by sale of industrial revenue bonds by the Ohio Water Development Authority, a state agency created by the Legislature to provide financing to municipalities and industry for water pollution abatement.

The project will include improvements in primary treatment facilities as well as installation of two secondary clarifiers and five additional aerators in two existing lagoons.

New Office Building Won't Solve Space Problem

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If the $56 million state office building under construction in Columbus were finished tomorrow, the state would still need another building of approximately equal size to take care of present space needs.

As it stands now, the 40-story building will be completed in 1973, and there are no plans yet for another one.

George Busche, who heads the Ohio Building Authority, said that even after completion of the new facility, the state will still be leasing $2.2 million worth of private office space it now holds in Columbus.

Busche said agencies and departments moving into the new building will be able to get rid of offices they now rent at an annual cost of $775,507.

But he said this gain will be cancelled by projected expansion of other departments, all of which will require new leased space.

Busche said two factors are chiefly responsible for the outside space needs, despite the fact that 800,000 square feet will be provided in the new office building.

First, much of the new space will be used to replace state-owned offices that are either to be vacated or torn down and therefore will not provide any

Court Shuts Off Newark Polluter

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Common Pleas Judge Walter Bolton criticized the practice of issuing permits to pollute Tuesday while ordering a suburban Newark utility company to stop discharging inadequately treated sewage.

"We can no longer continue to permit, or to issue permits, for the pollution of our water, whatever the reason," Bolton said in issuing a temporary injunction against the Forest Hills Utility Co.

Bolton's comment was in response to the defendant's claim that under a section of Ohio law the state has no right to terminate a permit once it has been issued.

The Licking County judge said any court "reviewing the constitutionality of this chapter would necessarily and immediately conclude that the issuance of any permits to any person or company to discharge sewage into waters ... constitutes a rather fantastic violation of the public welfare."

additional state-owned offices.

These buildings include the Statehouse Annex which houses the attorney general's office and the Ohio Supreme Court, the old school for the deaf, where the Health and Welfare departments are now located, and the old Wyandotte Building on Broad Street.

Second, state departments are expanding at a faster rate than had been projected when the state conducted a study of space requirements in 1966.

"The projections were right on the money through 1970," Busch said. "But it appears the present administration is growing faster than the study indicated it might."

The space requirements of the Department of Taxation appears to be the biggest unknown the building authority must contend with.

The department is marked down for about 2 floors in the new building. But Busche said if the General Assembly passes the proposed state income tax, the department could get another two floors, and department officials have said they could use more.

Other departments which administer expanding federal programs also appear to be growing faster than was earlier predicted, Busche said.

The 1966 space study predicted that the state would need $1.4 million square feet of new space by 1975.

The new building will provide 800,000 square feet, and Busche said that without taking unforeseen expansion into account, the state could use another 600,000 to 800,000 square feet now.

"At this stage we need to plan another building right now," Busche said. He said no planning has begun and no site has been considered. "We're hoping to get something under way in the next six months or sooner if possible."

Occupants of the new building, under the present stacking plan were chosen in the following manner, Busche said.

Occupants of the new building, which the Legislature said it wanted torn down, were chosen first.

Next, departments were included which, for administrative reasons, must be located near the state auditor or the Finance Department, also to be located in the new building. These include the Public Works and Personnel departments.

After that, departments were considered on the basis of how badly their present quarters have deteriorated. Among these, Busche said, are the Health and Welfare departments.

"The old deaf school was our worst situation," Busche said. "It's falling down around our ears."

He said other buildings are in equally bad shape. "Everything we do in them is illegal," Busche said of conditions in some buildings. "Anyone else could not get away with them except the state."

He recalled one incident last year in which a state messenger stepped through the open lobby door of the Wyandotte Building elevator and fell two floors to the basement, breaking a leg.

Hotel Mishap Claims Six

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — A terrace under construction at a hotel on the south coast of Spain collapsed into the bar and lobby today, and police reported six persons killed and several others injured.

The terrace, on which a tennis court was being constructed, gave way at the 354-room Hotel Riviera, built in 1964 at Benalmadena-Costa, 12 miles from Malaga.

A government spokesman said none of the casualties had been identified, but the hotel is popular with foreigners.

The cause of the collapse was not immediately known. But the area has had torrential rains in the past few days.

Firemen, ambulances and police converged on the scene.

The terrace adjoined the main, eight-story part of the hotel.

City Schools Prepare For August 31 Opening

Matters concerning the opening of school for the 1971-72 school term were of primary importance Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of Circleville Board of Education.

All students, including kindergarten, will begin school Aug. 31 this year and attend a full day's classes. For kindergartners, the full half-day schedule will be followed.

On that first day, a lunch program will be offered to students from the first grade to twelfth. Prices will remain the same — 35 cents for students. The senior high a la carte will not be in operation during the first days of school.

Time schedules for classes are the same as last year. Elementary school opens 8:45 a.m. and lets out at 2:50 p.m. Kindergarten sessions are from 8:45 to 11:15 in the morning and 12:15 to 2:45 in the afternoon. In the junior high, the students may enter the building at 8 a.m. and should be in their homerooms by 8:13. School will dismiss at 3:20 p.m. High school students may enter the building at 8:05 in the morning and should be in their classrooms by 8:14. Dismissal is at 3:25 p.m.

SUPERINTENDENT Fritz Jacobs noted that the dress code in operation at the latter part of the previous school year would remain in effect this term. This code permitted slacks as acceptable attire for girls.

The code generally accepts a neat, clean appearance of students, but bars fringed or bleached trousers or slacks, and excessively short or tight skirts. Culotte outfits or pantskirts in an A-line appearance and of acceptable length are permitted. Haircuts are to be respectable and sideburns are permitted to ear lobes.

Last minute work was approved to prepare the school buildings and lots for opening day. The board approved a number of purchases including: chain link fence at Nicholas Drive, $215.50; additional painting at junior high by Chester

Hill, $72; blacktop patch by Van Camps at junior high where new fence was installed and old ticket booth removed, $149.

Carl Tracy was employed to build and install a bench in the area of the front entrance of the junior high for use in student activities. He was also hired to install new door locks on some of the rooms at the building where original equipment is failing. Total cost of material was $756.80 and labor not to exceed $400.

Two teachers, Betty Weckerly and Robert Henry, with one year employment in city schools were offered new contracts subject to securing standard certification. Delores Rogols, Jean Milburn, Kathryn Huffer and Evalena Wolford were offered employment under temporary certification. They complete the staffing of Circleville School District for the 1971-72 term.

Contracts for bread and milk supply were awarded to the Continental Baking Co. of Chillicothe and Blue Ribbon Dairy.

ON substitute lists, board members approved:

Bus drivers — Homer Lagore, Jeff Kiser, Robert McCabe and Carl Begenriefe.

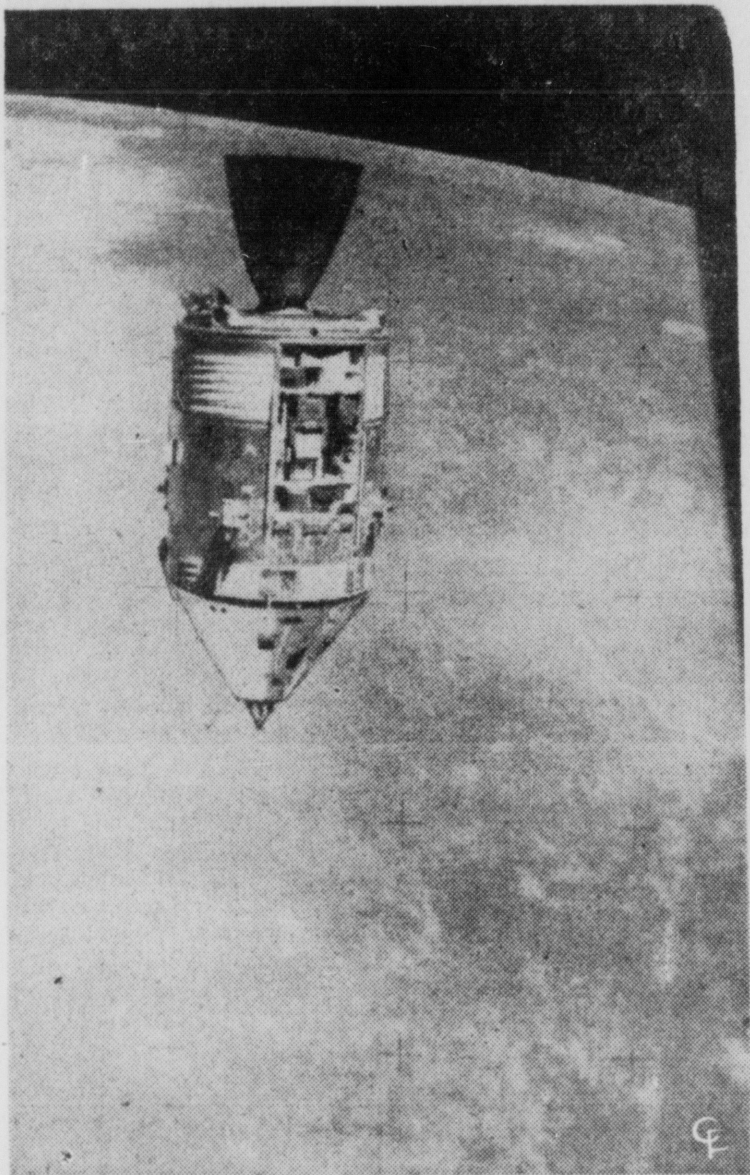

Lunchroom staff—Beulah McGlone, Audrey Greeno, Carol Diltz, Doris Jean Miller, Pat Marshall, Mabel Harrison, Shirley Price, Anna Allen, Martha Purcell, Jenine Daniels.

Teachers — Mrs. Pearl M. Drum, Mrs. Mildred S. Maxwell, Mrs. Sophia Smith, Mrs. Clara C. Teegardin, Mrs. Victoria Moffitt, Mrs. Sandra Henn, Miss Martha E. Reid, Mrs. Marilyn Ganley, Mrs. Florence Baker, Mrs. Wanela Vorhees, Mrs. Kathryn Bower, Mrs. Louise Brown, Mrs. Mary L. Johnson, Mrs. Lucille Scott, Mrs. Frances Rose, Mrs. Mildred Hatfield, Miss Mary Parks, Mrs. Marilyn Farthing, Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, Mrs. Frances M. Pritt, Mrs. Jeanette H. Chilcote, Mrs. Martha Ann Waggon, Mrs. Louise Carle, Miss Mary L. Walters, Mrs. Carol Abright, Mrs. Rosemary J. Mader, Mrs. Marguerite Weiler.

All members of the Circleville Board of Education were present at last night's meeting. Attending were President R. L. Brehmer Jr., Ruth Kraus, Tom Elsea, Dale DeLong, Forrest Brown, Clerk, Mary Ellen Rader and William Brooke, high school teacher.

Matters concerning the opening of school for the 1971-72 school term were of primary importance Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of Circleville Board of Education.

All students, including kindergarten, will begin school Aug. 31 this year and attend a full day's classes. For kindergartners, the full half-day schedule will be followed.

On that first day, a lunch program will be offered to students from the first grade to twelfth. Prices will remain the same — 35 cents for students. The senior high a la carte will not be in operation during the first days of school.

Time schedules for classes are the same as last year. Elementary school opens 8:45 a.m. and lets out at 2:50 p.m. Kindergarten sessions are from 8:45 to 11:15 in the morning and 12:15 to 2:45 in the afternoon. In the junior high, the students may enter the building at 8 a.m. and should be in their homerooms by 8:13. School will dismiss at 3:20 p.m. High school students may enter the building at 8:05 in the morning and should be in their classrooms by 8:14. Dismissal is at 3:25 p.m.

SUPERINTENDENT Fritz Jacobs noted that the dress code in operation at the latter part of the previous school year would remain in effect this term. This code permitted slacks as acceptable attire for girls.

The code generally accepts a neat, clean appearance of students, but bars fringed or bleached trousers or slacks, and excessively short or tight skirts. Culotte outfits or pantsuits in an A-line appearance and of acceptable length are permitted. Haircuts are to be respectable and sideburns are permitted to ear lobes.

Last minute work was approved to prepare the school buildings and lots for opening day. The board approved a number of purchases including: chain link fence at Nicholas Drive, $215.50; additional painting at junior high by Chester

Hill, $72; blacktop patch by Van Camps at junior high where new fence was installed and old ticket booth removed, $149.

Carl Tracy was employed to build and install a bench in the area of the front entrance of the junior high for use in student activities. He was also hired to install new door locks on some of the rooms at the building where original equipment is failing. Total cost of material was $756.50 and labor not to exceed $400.

Two teachers, Betty Weckerly and Robert Henry, with one year employment in city schools were offered new contracts subject to securing standard certification. Delores Rogols, Jean Milburn, Kathryn Huffer and Evalena Wolford were offered employment under temporary certification. They complete the staffing of Circleville School District for the 1971-72 term.

Contracts for bread and milk supply were awarded to the Continental Baking Co. of Chillicothe and Blue Ribbon Dairy.

ON substitute lists, board members approved:

Bus drivers — Homer Lagore, Jeff Kiser, Robert McCabe and Carl Brengenrife.

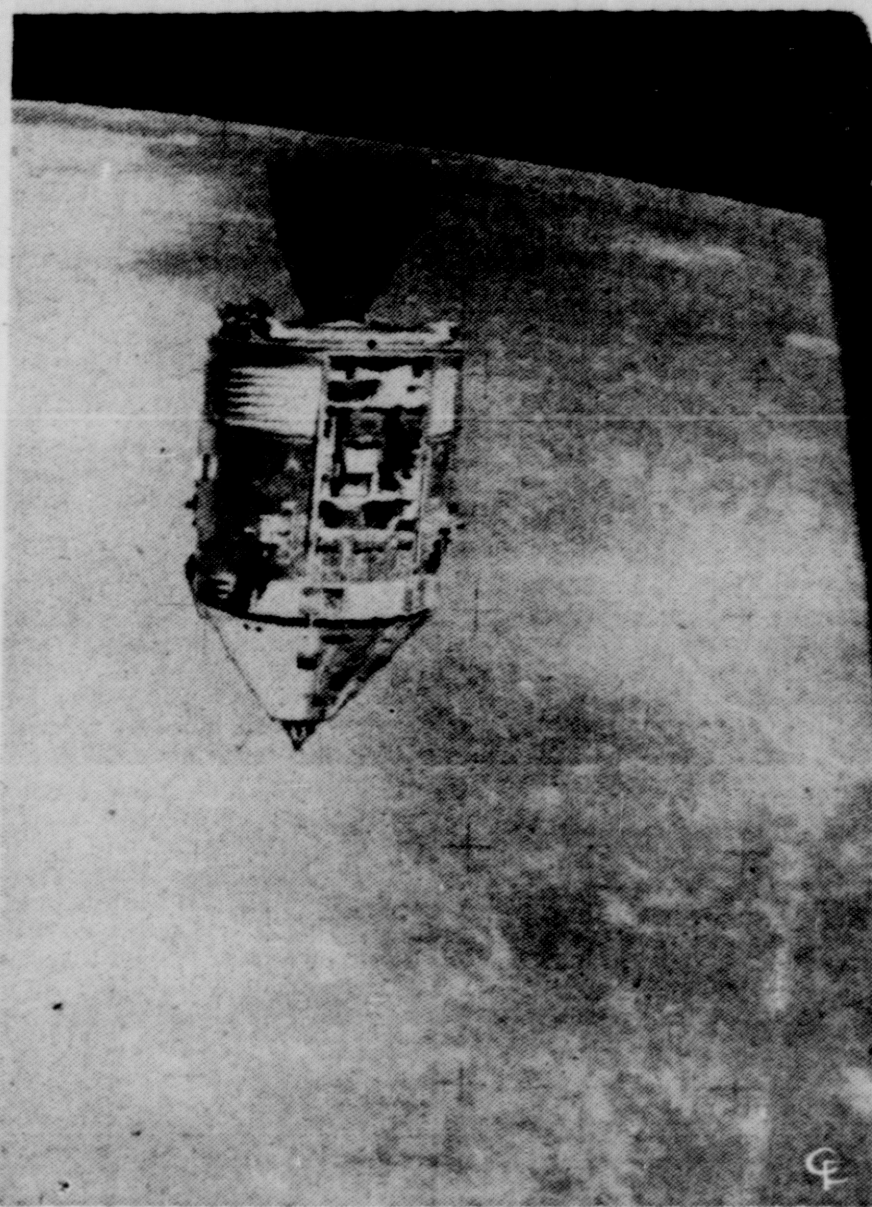

Lunchroom staff—Beulah McGlone, Audrey Greeno, Carol Diltz, Doris Jean Miller, Pat Marshall, Mabel Harrison, Shirley Price, Anna Allen, Martha Purcell, Jenine Daniels.

Teachers — Mrs. Pearl M. Drum, Mrs. Mildred S. Maxwell, Mrs. Sophia Smith, Mrs. Clara C. Teegardin, Mrs. Victoria Moffitt, Mrs. Sandra Henn, Miss Martha E. Reid, Mrs. Marilyn Ganley, Mrs. Florence Baker, Mrs. Wapeta Vorhees, Mrs. Kathryn Bower, Mrs. Louise Brown, Mrs. Mary L. Johnson, Mrs. Lucille Scott, Mrs. Frances Rose, Mrs. Mildred Hatfield, Miss Mary Parks, Mrs. Marilyn Farthing, Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, Mrs. Frances M. Pruitt, Mrs. Jeanette H. Chilcote, Mrs. Martha Ann Wiggins, Mrs. Louise Carle, Miss Mary L. Walters, Mrs. Carol A. Holt, Mrs. Rosemary J. Mader, Mrs. Marguerite Weiler.

All members of the Circleville Board of Education were present at last night's meeting. Attending were President R. L. Brehmer Jr., Ruth Kraus, Tom Elsea, Dale DeLong, Forrest Brown, Clerk, Mary Ellen Rader and William Brooke, high school teacher.

DOCK STRIKE GOES AGAINST THE GRAIN—With grain terminals all full up as the West Coast longshoremen's strike continues, a loading machine piles barley outside at Cargill, Inc., in Arlington, Ore. It's this way all around the state.

Reds Surprise South Viets

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist force surprised a company of South Vietnamese rangers during the night in the Mekong Delta, killing 13 and wounding 10, military sources reported today.

The 100-150 rangers were camped for the night 45 miles southwest of Saigon, and the enemy troops hit them before dawn Tuesday with grenades and machine-gun fire, then withdrew under fire from helicopter gunships and artillery.

The Saigon command said five enemy soldiers were killed and two were captured.

Ranger reinforcements pursued the enemy force and made sporadic contacts later in the day two to four miles from the camp. Eight more of the enemy were reported killed and five prisoners were reported taken. Sources said one more ranger was wounded.

Eleven more Viet Cong were reported killed in the delta during a sweep by 1,000 South Vietnamese soldiers 120 miles southwest of Saigon. Two South Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed and nine wounded. The drive was launched Tuesday after Viet Cong "tax collectors" invaded the village of Long and demanded money.

At the northern end of the country along the demilitarized zone, South Vietnamese infantrymen clashed with North Vietnamese troops near Fire Base Fuller and reported killing three enemy. South Vietnamese losses were put at one killed and eight wounded.

Amanda Still Has Teaching Vacancies

Amanda-Clearcreek Board of Education hired four new teachers at their meeting Monday, but still have three vacancies remaining in their staff.

New teachers employed were: Victoria Guay, Amanda second grade, bachelor degree from Ohio University; Judith Lahmer, Amanda sixth grade, bachelor degree from Ohio University; Mary Beth Vulic, high school English and French, master degree from Middlebury University, Vermont, and Miss Nicki Sarrocco, district librarian, Kent State University.

Teachers still are needed in the biology science and math combination for the high school, junior high industrial arts, and Amanda fifth grade. Superintendent W. A. Smith is also seeking applicants for head cook at the Amanda building.

Resignations were received and accepted from Grace Young, for personal reasons and Halderman Murphey, who has found a teaching post in Guernsey County nearer his home.

REBA Kelley was hired full time as a bus driver and Marilyn Sandy and Larry Harmon employed in substitute positions.

Board members passed a motion permitting school employees to participate in Lan-Fair Credit Union by means of payroll deductions. They also passed legislation setting tuition rates for the coming term at $26.17. Sandra Kay Tolliver was accepted as a tuition student under this rate.

The board was informed that bond retirement for the district has been reduced from 5.2 to 4.2 mills. Operating millage remains 4.7 inside the 10 mill limitation and 17.6 outside for a total of 22.3 operating mills.

Due to a deficit in the school cafeteria operation, board members approved a lunch price increase and agreed to follow the revised federal lunch program. New lunch prices will be 35 cents for grades one through six, 40 cents for grades seven through twelve and 50 cents for adults.

Stoussville PTO was thanked for providing funds to repair the ceiling of the gymnasium in the Stoussville building and the Biddy Football League of Amanda-Clearcreek was given permission to use the grounds this season.

A special meeting of the board will be held Aug. 23 at 8 p.m. to discuss certified and non-certified contracts and levy renewal.

Present at the monthly meeting were President Robert Turner, P. D. Kraft and Jack Fausnaugh, and school administrators and principals, W. A. Smith, Richard Smith and Charles Martindale.

access to West Berlin. They include:

1. Reducing the political ties between West Berlin and West Germany, which heavily subsidizes the isolated city, and restricting trips of West German politicians to Berlin.

2. Opening a Soviet consulate in West Berlin, which the West fears will be used to soften up West Berlin for eventual absorption into East Germany.

3. Continued discrimination between West Berliners and West Germans in regard to travel and passports. West Berliners are not allowed to travel to East Berlin nor to use their West German passports to enter Communist countries. West Germans are not so restricted.

4. An end to the West German governments representing West Berlin in foreign affairs.

Southern Iraq Marsh Arabs Live Surrounded By Water

By ABDULLATIF EL MAY
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — They catch birds with a horse's tail and shoot fish with a dart.

Arabs to the core they ride not camels but graceful reed boats and live surrounded by water, not sand.

They are the marsh Arabs of southern Iraq, an unusual breed.

They dress like desert Arabs, with flowing robes and checkered headcloths held in place with two strands of black rope, but live in a soggy marshland covering about 6,000 square miles.

The marshes of southern Iraq are fed by the floodwaters of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. They extend from about 100 miles south of Baghdad to the head of the Persian Gulf. No one knows exactly how many Arabs live in the marshlands, but the area has been a sanctuary from oppression for centuries.

Mesopotamia — the land between the two rivers — has seen more than half a dozen civilizations since the beginning of recorded time. As one succeeded the other, each with its share of harshness and deprivation, refugees fled into the trackless marshes by the thousands.

The Arabs were the last to conquer Mesopotamia — modern-day Iraq — and they left the deepest imprint. The refugees in the marshes adopted Arab ways, the Islamic religion and the Arabic language.

They live in villages of reed huts, fishing and hunting during the flood, farming the land in the dry season. It is a way of life that has remained basically unchanged for centuries.

The marshes abound with hundreds of wild boar and thousands of migratory birds like ducks, cormorants, herons and geese. The water is thick with fish for most of the year.

The marsh Arabs have developed unusual if efficient ways of catching their prey.

To catch birds, a horse's tail is spread on the ground and covered with grain. The birds come to feed, peck about and soon their legs are so entangled in the hair that they cannot fly.

Fishermen use nets in the deeper stretches of water. But another way of doing it is with a small dart attached by a string to the fisherman's wrist. As still as a rock, the fisherman observes his target in the shallow waterways. A sudden lunge, a tug and a wriggling fish emerges neatly speared through the middle.

The marsh Arabs have evolved an architectural style that is unique in the Middle East.

A typical hut is built of reeds on a base packed with mud, papyrus plants and reeds. The hut and its base is attached with ropes to four palm trees planted near each corner. When the floodwaters come, the house floats but does not drift away.

Entire villages are built in this fashion, connected by narrow waterways piled by reed canoes that can be as long as 30 feet.

Village meeting houses are masterpieces of Gothic-looking arches, latticework windows and spacious interiors — all done with reeds.

The way of life of the marsh Arabs has given them particular social customs. Married couples, for instance, do not wear wedding rings. Instead, the husband wears one of his wife's dresses over his own cloak before going out to fish or hunt.

"This means that the man is married and tired of other women," explained a village headman. "It means that he considers his wife to be the most beautiful of all."

Arrest Mother For Taking Baby To Birth Control Talk

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Police charges that a birth control lecture endangered the welfare of a 14-month-old baby have stirred a controversy on Long Island.

Three plainclothes policemen arrested the lecturer, William R. Baird Jr., and the baby's mother, Nancy Manfredonia, 28, at the lecture Friday night.

The baby was apparently the only minor the police could locate in an audience of 25 or 30 people.

Baird, who operates a birth control clinic, was charged with endangering the baby's welfare by "exposing" her to birth control devices he explained how to use.

His lawyer said it was legal in New York to give birth control information to minors. Baird has had conflicts with the law in other states where he has lectured, and once served a jail term in Boston.

Mrs. Manfredonia was charged with endangering her baby's welfare by taking her to the lecture.

She said the baby understands only four words—mama, dada, cookie and milk. Nobody touched the baby or paid any special attention to her. She sat in pajamas on her mother's lap during the lecture and made no outcry, her mother said.

Mrs. Manfredonia said she took the baby to the meeting because no sitter was available. Suffolk County Executive H. Lee Dennison first called the arrests "ridiculous," but after conferring with County Police Commissioner John L. Barry said he was satisfied that the arrests were legitimate.

"Not everything that transpired at that lecture meeting was part of the publicity," Dennison told a reporter. He refused to elaborate, saying it was a matter before the courts. He did say, however, that he did not mean to imply that the child had been physically abused, or that any obscenity was involved.

Disaster Averted By Motorman

CARLE PLACE, N. Y. (AP) — A possible train wreck involving some 1,000 commuters may have been averted by a sharp-eyed motorman on the 4:23 p.m. electric Long Island Railroad train from New York to Huntington.

"There is a steel bar across the tracks and it's touching the third rail," he told a conductor as he brought the 10-car train to a halt.

"There will be a slight delay," said the conductor over the intercom. "We will have to shut off the power to remove a steel bar from the tracks."

The train arrived 15 minutes late but passengers were relieved to know the motorman was on the alert.

Second Heart Attack Hits Murder Suspect

XUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Juan Corona, the farm labor contractor accused of hacking 25 men to death and burying them in orchards, apparently has suffered a second heart attack.

Corona, 37, was brought to Sutter County Hospital on Friday from his jail cell in Marysville complaining of chest pains. Corona suffered what was described as a mild heart attack in June and doctors said Tuesday tests showed that he apparently suffered another seizure. It was not immediately determined if the second was more serious than the first.

Southern Iraq Marsh Arabs Live Surrounded By Water

By ABDULLATIF EL MAY
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — They catch birds with a horse's tail and shoot fish with a dart. Arabs to the core they ride not camels but graceful reed boats and live surrounded by water, not sand.

They are the marsh Arabs of southern Iraq, an unusual breed. They dress like desert Arabs, with flowing robes and chequered headcloths held in place with two strands of black rope, but live in a soggy marshland covering about 6,000 square miles.

The marshes of southern Iraq are fed by the floodwaters of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. They extend from about 100 miles south of Baghdad for 200 miles down to Basra at the head of the Persian Gulf. No one knows exactly how many Arabs live in the marshlands, but the area has been a sanctuary from oppression for centuries.

Mesopotamia — the land between the two rivers — has seen more than half a dozen civilizations since the beginning of recorded time. As one succeeded the other, each with its share of harshness and deprivation, refugees fled into the trackless marshes by the thousands.

The Arabs were the last to conquer Mesopotamia — modern-day Iraq — and they left the deepest imprint. The refugees in the marshes adopted Arab ways, the Islamic religion and the Arabic language.

They live in villages of reed huts, fishing and hunting during the flood, farming the land in the dry season. It is a way of life that has remained basically unchanged for centuries.

The marshes abound with hundreds of wild boar and thousands of migratory birds like ducks, cormorants, herons and geese. The water is thick with fish for most of the year.

The marsh Arabs have developed unusual if efficient ways of catching their prey.

To catch birds, a horse's tail is spread on the ground and covered with grain. The birds come to feed, peck about and soon their legs are so entangled in the hair that they cannot fly.

Fishermen use nets in the deeper stretches of water. But another way of doing it is with a small dart attached by a string to the fisherman's wrist. As still as a rock, the fisherman observes his target in the shallow waterways. A sudden lunge, a tug and a wriggling fish emerges neatly speared through the middle.

The marsh Arabs have evolved an architectural style that is unique in the Middle East.

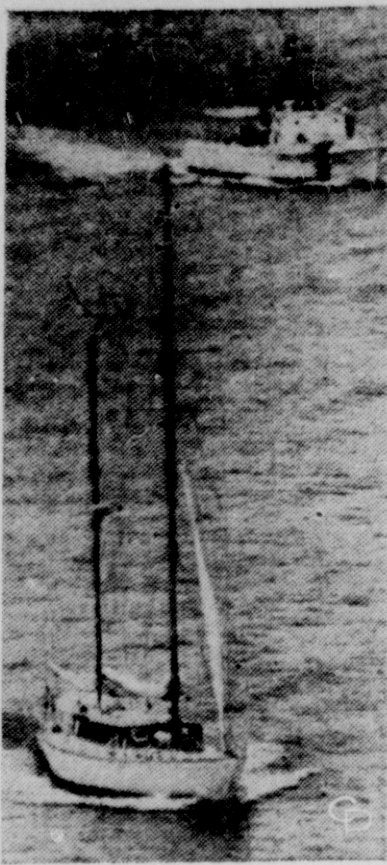

A typical hut is built of reeds on a base packed with mud, papyrus plants and reeds. The hut and its base is attached with ropes to four palm trees planted near each corner. When the floodwaters come, the house floats but does not drift away.

Entire villages are built in this fashion, connected by narrow waterways piled by reed canoes that can be as long as 30 feet.

Village meeting houses are masterpieces of Gothic-looking arches, latticework windows and spacious interiors — all done with reeds.

The way of life of the marsh Arabs has given them particular social customs. Married couples, for instance, do not wear wedding rings. Instead, the husband wears one of his wife's dresses over his own cloak before going out to fish or hunt.

"This means that the man is married and tired of other women," explained a village headman. "It means that he considers his wife to be the most beautiful of all."

Arrest Mother For Taking Baby To Birth Control Talk

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Police charges that a birth control lecture endangered the welfare of a 14-month-old baby have stirred a controversy on Long Island.

Three plainclothes policemen arrested the lecturer, William R. Baird Jr., and the baby's mother, Nancy Manfredonia, 28, at the lecture Friday night.

The baby was apparently the only minor the police could locate in an audience of 25 or 30 people.

Baird, who operates a birth control clinic, was charged with endangering the baby's welfare by "exposing" her to birth control devices he explained how to use.

His lawyer said it was legal in New York to give birth control information to minors. Baird has had conflicts with the law in other states where he has lectured, and once served a jail term in Boston.

Mrs. Manfredonia was charged with endangering her baby's welfare by taking her to the lecture.

She said the baby understands only four words—mama, dada, cookie and milk. Nobody touched the baby or paid any special attention to her. She sat in pajamas on her mother's lap during the lecture and made no outcry, her mother said.

Mrs. Manfredonia said she took the baby to the meeting because no sitter was available. Suffolk County Executive H. Lee Dennison first called the arrests "ridiculous," but after conferring with County Police Commissioner John L. Barry said he was satisfied that the arrests were legitimate.

"Not everything that transpired at that lecture meeting was part of the publicity," Dennison told a reporter. He refused to elaborate, saying it was a matter before the courts. Uproarious Pan-Am Games Skidding To Uneasy Close CALI, Colombia (AP) — The United States again has grabbed a lordly share of medals in the Sixth Pan-American Games, a tropical mixture of talent and off-the-field tempests which staggers to a virtual close today with a fuse still sizzling on a Cuba-USA incident.

The day before the departure to Cuba of the USA's strong volleyball team for regional Olympic trials, U.S. officials still awaited response from Cuba to a formal apology demand for a Cuban attack on an American athlete.

The demand was made after unidentified Cubans roughed up James Culhane, 28, New Haven, Conn., a gymnast, during one of several melees resulting from attempts to grab some commemorative flags as souvenirs.

Culhane, who took one of the Cali games flags from the Pan-Am Village Court of Flags, suffered eye cuts when his glasses were shattered by angry Cubans thinking it was their flag Culhane had taken.

It took U.S. State Department permission to permit the USA volleyball team's visit to Cuba Friday which presumably still is on, whether or not an immediate Cuban apology is forthcoming.

With a last minute flow of medals by the men's and women's swimmers who finish up tonight, the USA's medal collection since the Cali carnival began July 31, is 95 golds, 70 silver and 39 bronze for a total of 204.

The USA will finish slightly below its 225 overall medal harvest at Winnipeg in 1967, but with a notable drop from 120 gold medals captured four years ago.

The real surprise has been Cuba, whose Russian technical aid obviously has spread from scientific and industrial fields to the realm of athletics.

Entering the closing hours of competition, the well-trained Cubans have captured 25 gold medals, compared with only eight at Winnipeg, and an overall total of 93 medallions that compares with 48 when they finished a poor third behind host Canada (92).

Lee's Barbs Keep Nurses In Stitches

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (AP) — Lee Trevino, who keeps the gallery laughing at golf tournaments, has a new audience—the nurses at St. Anne's Hospital.

Trevino, the PGA tour's leading money winner for 1971, underwent surgery for appendicitis early Tuesday and is reported in good condition.

"He keeps us laughing," said the nurse. She noted, however, that he hasn't given any golf lessons to the nursing staff yet.

"He's not quite up to that," she said, and noted Trevino was a "wonderful patient."

A hospital spokesman said he was up and walking Tuesday and said there had been "no complications whatsoever."

Trevino, one of the most talkative golfers on the pro circuit, was allowed to talk Tuesday only to family and close friends.

The spokesman said many well-wishers had sent him flowers and cards.

Trevino was in Truth or Consequences Monday to do some fishing when he was stricken.

A spokesman for Lee Trevino Enterprises in El Paso, Tex., about 65 miles south of Truth or Consequences, said the golfer is expected to be off the golf course "about three weeks."

Fran Seeking Large Loan From Giants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fran Tarkenton, the star New York Giants' quarterback who left the team over a contract dispute, says all he wants in his contract dispute is what many National Football League teams have given their quarterbacks—a loan.

"This loan thing should be obvious to anybody," he said in Atlanta Tuesday. "You take less salary and more loan, and that package could get you the top dollar." The loan would be a tax advantage and would allow more funds for investment.

Wellington T. Mara, Giants owner, said Monday after Tarkenton left the team that the quarterback had sought a six-figure loan and implied it had something to do with his business ventures.

"This contract has nothing to do with my business ventures," said Tarkenton, whose many business interests have reportedly made him a millionaire.

"When you get in a high tax bracket which I'm in, thank you, you don't need ordinary income," he said. "I was willing to sacrifice ordinary income for the advantages of the loan."

Meanwhile, Giants Coach Alex Webster said he was happy with Tarkenton's replacement Dick Shiner. "I think he can take the Giants to a championship."

The Oakland Raiders and New York Jets will be without the services of their top signal callers when they tangle Saturday in one of the weekend's NFL exhibition contests.

Jets quarterback Joe Namath injured last Saturday against the Detroit Lions, will be out of uniform at least until mid-November and Raiders quarterback Darryl Lamonica has been sidelined with a twisted knee.

Al Woodall, who replaced Namath for the last nine games of last season after Namath broke his wrist, will have the starting nod for the Jets while Kenny Stabler, who tossed for 254 yards in the Raiders' losing 25-24 effort against Philadelphia last Monday, will call the plays.

Legion Teams Stopped By Ashland Rain

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP)—Only rain has managed to halt the hitting rampage that has dominated this year's Ohio American Legion Baseball Tournament.

Four Tuesday afternoon games were postponed after the teams that played maintained an average of 12 runs per game. The postponements put an unexpected hardship on winners bracket teams by requiring them to play two games today.

Paired in morning makeup games were Lima vs. Richmond, Ashlev vs. Piqua, Cambridge vs. Hillsboro and Worthington vs. Archbold. Lima has one loss in the double elimination tourney; the others are unbeaten.

Teams remaining undefeated after the morning action take the field again late in the afternoon against victors of mid-day contests.

Three teams were ousted in Tuesday play, including Cincinnati Budde, a tournament participant four straight years and the 1969 titlist. Euclid whipped the tourney-tested team 8-2. Ashtabula eliminated Wadsworth 7-6 and Pomeroy sent Kent home by a 9-4 count.

Marichal Snaps Skid With 1 - 0 Victory

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Juan Marichal and Juan Pizarro... the wonderful Juans. At least they were both wonderful Tuesday night, Marichal pitching a brilliant two-hitter as the San Francisco Giants edged the Montreal Expos 1-0 and Pizarro spacing five hits as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

In other National League games, Los Angeles downed Philadelphia 6-1; Atlanta topped St. Louis 2-1; Houston nipped Cincinnati 3-2, and New York trimmed San Diego 6-4.

In the American League, Oakland swept a day-night Doubleheader from Boston 6-5 and 7-5; Kansas City took a two-night twinbill from Washington 9-2 and 3-1; Baltimore shaded Minnesota 4-3 in 10 innings; California beat New York 7-6; Detroit routed Milwaukee 12-3, and Cleveland stopped Chicago 4-1.

Marichal, the enigmatic veteran Giants' right-hander, had started the season with the best winning percentage, .671 among active pitchers, with 203 victories and only 98 losses. He also led active pitchers in shut-outs with 46 and was third on the all-time earned run average list with a 2.68 mark, behind only Walter Johnson's 2.37 and Grover Cleveland Alexander's 2.56.

This was despite the worst season of his 11-year San Francisco career, when he won only 12 and lost 10 in 1970 and his ERA soared to 4.11.

This season, Marichal appeared to have overcome the illness that plagued him last year, as he got off winging with a 10-4 record through June 23.

Then, his pitching took an inexplicable nosedive, and he had lost four in a row before blanking the Expos for his first victory in seven weeks.

Although he allowed only Rusty Staub's two-out double in the fourth inning and Bob Bailey's leadoff single in the seventh, he was locked in a scoreless duel with Bill Stoneman, who also had permitted only two hits, through the first eight innings. Then, Stoneman, 12-10, who had been tough in the clutch, stranding nine runners in eight innings, finally cracked in the ninth.

Alan Gallagher's one-out single got the Giants started. Then, Marichal doubled down the third base line and Bobby Bonds walked, before Tito Fuentes broke up the scoreless battle with a single to right.

Marichal walked three and struck out eight in helping the Giants preserve their 4½-game lead over Los Angeles in the NL West.

Pizarro was almost as sharp as Marichal in shackling the Pirates—the best hitting club in the majors. He also walked three and fanned six in hurling his third straight complete game victory and pulling the Cubs to within six games of first-place Pittsburgh in the East Division.

The much-traveled left-hander, now with his eighth major league club, is a quiet individual. He prefers to let his pitching be his talking point.

"Some people think I'm mean because I don't say much," he said. "But I'm not mean."

Only on the mound... Pizarro has compiled a 4-1 record since the Cubs recalled him July 5 from their Tacoma farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

The Cubs, in winning their seventh game in the last eight and handing the Pirates their ninth setback in 12 games, scored both their runs in the seventh inning.

Jim Hickman started the inning with a double and Ron Santo walked. Brock Davis bunted and all three runners were safe when losing pitcher Bruce Kison fumbled the ball.

J.C. Martin followed with a sacrifice fly for one run, with Santo taking third on the play, and Pizarro hit a sacrifice fly for the second run.

The only damaging blow off Pizarro was Bob Robertson's 23rd homer in the fourth inning. But Pizarro had to pitch out of a serious jam in the ninth. Willie Stargell blooped a double with one out and Manny Sanguillen beat out a hit to deep short on which Don Kessinger made a sparkling stop to keep pinch runner Vic Davalillo from reaching third.

Robertson followed with a grounder which might have scored Davalillo had he been on third. Gene Alley then was intentionally walked, filling the bases. But Pizarro ended the game by striking out pinch hitter Al Oliver.

The surging Dodgers made it three straight victories and nine in 11 games, beating the Phils with the help of three runs batted in by Tom Haller and six-hit pitching by Bill Singer.

Haller singled in a run in the second inning and broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run homer in the fifth following a single by Willie Crawford. The Dodgers added three runs in the ninth, one on a single by Wes Parker and two on a single by Crawford.

Pitcher George Stone sparked Atlanta's victory over St. Louis, driving in one run with a single, and helping build another with a sacrifice.

The Braves got a run in the fifth on Zoilo Versalles' single, a sacrifice and Stone's single, his second hit. Then they tied, Stone sacrificed and both snapped a 1-1 deadlock in the seventh when Marty Perez sin-runners were safe on an error, and Felix Millan hit a sacrifice fly.

Stone and reliever Cecil Upshaw checked the Cards on seven hits.

Houston rookie Ken Forsch permitted only one hit—just one after the first inning—in beating Cincinnati for the third straight time this season. The only Cincinnati hit over the final nine innings was Dave Concepcion's single in the fifth.

The Reds had scored twice in the first on doubles by Pete Rose and Tony Perez and a single by Johnny Bench. The Astros tied it in the third on Joe Morgan's two-run homer and won it in the seventh when Jack Hiatt walked, Forsch sacrificed and Jesus Alou had a run-scoring bloop single.

Ken Singleton and Jerry Grote each drove in two Mets runs while reliever Tug McGraw checked San Diego on one run—Nate Colbert's 22nd homer—over the final four innings. Mets' starter Gary Gentry had to leave the game in the fifth inning after complaining of a pain in his lower back.

Killebrew Blasts 500th Homer

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Baltimore Orioles spoiled Harmon Killebrew's little party but the Chicago White Sox couldn't do much to dampen Sam McDowell's celebration.

Killebrew snapped a long dry spell with his 500th career home run and then added another for good measure Tuesday night, but it wasn't enough for Minnesota and the Orioles overtook the Twins 4-3 in 10 innings.

McDowell, absent in a contract dispute since July 31, returned to Cleveland and combined with two relievers for a six-hitter, beating the White Sox 4-1.

In other American League action Tuesday, Detroit walloped Milwaukee 12-3, California stopped New York 7-6, Kansas City swept a doubleheader from Washington 9-2 and 3-1, and Oakland took a pair from Boston 6-5 and 7-5.

Killebrew became the 10th man in major league history to reach 500 career homers when he unloaded on Baltimore left-hander Mike Cuellar in the first inning.

He had hit No. 498 on June 22 and No. 499 on July 25. When he got to the Twins' dugout after circling the bases to a tremendous ovation from the Minnesota fans, Manager Bill Riggs kidded him, saying, "don't let it be so long between 500 and 501."

Killebrew didn't. He unloaded on Cuellar again in the sixth inning, tying the score at 3-3. It stayed that way until the 10th when Merv Rettenmund broke the tie with a Baltimore homer—the 33rd of his career—giving the Birds and Cuellar, the victory.

"They don't matter," said Killebrew of his homers, "if you don't win."

McDowell, making his first start since July 27, remembered to win his game. The tall left-hander hurled six shutout innings before leaving the game and Alan Foster and Phil Hennigan finished up, nailing down Sudden Sam's 11th victory of the season.

McDowell allowed just four hits, struck out seven and walked two as he beat Chicago for the third straight time.

Dick McAuliffe, Norm Cash and Bill Freehan drove in three runs apiece, leading Detroit to its romp over Milwaukee.

McAuliffe contributed a triple and homer and Freehan and Cash also homered as Joe Coleman, 13-6, coasted to his sixth consecutive victory. He surrendered eight hits—four of them by Tommy Harper.

Freehan's homer—his 17th of the season—gave him four in the last two games.

Jim Spencer and Roger Repoz pumped a pair of eighth inning homers, breaking a tie and moving California past the New York Yankees.

Spencer's 14th homer of the season snapped a 4-4 tie and then Repoz tagged his ninth—a two-run shot—that gave the Angels enough cushion to stand off a late Yankee rally.

Gail Hopkins cracked a three-run homer in the first inning—his fifth straight hit in two games—and started Kansas City to its first game romp over Washington.

Al Fitzmorris went five innings and Jim York completed the six-hitter for the Royals.

In the nightcap, Mike Hedlund and Ted Abernathy combined for a four-hitter, completing the sweep. Hedlund earned his ninth victory and Abernathy got his 17th save.

Gene Tenace's two-out single in the ninth inning drove in Oakland's winning run in the first game of the doubleheader at Boston. Tommy Davis and Dick Green smacked homers for the A's.

In the second game, Oakland used home runs by Sal Bando, Reggie Jackson and Dave Duncan to beat the Sox again. Jim "Mudcat" Grant, acquired from Pittsburgh Monday, made his first appearance for the A's and saved the victory for John Odum.

Astro Rookie Ken Forsch Handcuffs Punchless Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds can't seem to solve the riddle of Ken Forsch who ironically claims he is "afraid" of the 1970 National League champions.

The Houston rookie stymied Cincinnati on four hits—only one the last 8 1/3 innings—as the Astros squeezed past the Reds 3-2 Tuesday night and scored their fifth consecutive victory over them.

Forsch has started against the Reds three times this season and has gone the route to beat them all three times. In the two previous starts, Forsch stopped the Reds on six and three hits respectively.

"I'm afraid to pitch against the Reds because they've got too many hard swingers," Forsch said. "So many can hit the ball out. I have to challenge them with my fast ball."

The Reds got to Forsch for both their runs in the first inning. Pete Rose doubled and then Tony Perez doubled him home. Perez crossed the plate when John Bench singled. After that, Forsch allowed only a fifth inning single to Dave Concepcion and a pair of walks to Perez. He retired the last 10 men he faced.

"It was just a frustrating inning," Forsch said about the first inning.

"They hit the ball pretty hard all night, but many were just right at the fielders. It shows there is a lot of luck in this game."

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said "Forsch looks like a real outstanding pitcher."

Astros Manager Harry Walker said, "The kid seems to have gotten back his good stuff. He had a real fine start—5-1—then he seemed to lose his rhythm. But the last two or three times out he has been very tough to beat."

Walker pointed out that Forsch made an important contribution from the plate also.

After Jack Hiatt walked in the seventh, Forsch laid down a perfect bunt to sacrifice Hiatt to second and set the stage for a bloop single by Jesus Alou that scored the tie-breaking run.

Forsch said, "Funny thing—I've been messing up on my bunts. But I decided to hang my head over the plate so I would teeter bunt the ball or get hit on the head."

Joe Morgan cracked his ninth homer in the third inning with Alou on base to knot the score 2-2.

All three runs came off Cincinnati starter Wayne Simpson who dropped to 3-5. Simpson won seven full innings and yielded six hits. Walks have haunted Simpson all season and it was a base on balls in the seventh to Hiatt that led to the winning run.

"I was satisfied with my control," Simpson said, "but what happens? A guy I walked turns out to score the winning run."

SPORTS Highlights

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP) —

Prone smallbore rifle competition in the National Rifle Association championships ends today with the leader, Marine Reserve Sgt. John Comley of Rochester, N.Y., holding a slim three-point lead over his two nearest competitors.

Comley fired a 1,597 out of a possible 1,600 Tuesday for a three-day total of 4,790. In second was Steven Kern of Peoria,

Ill., with 4,787 points, the same as Mrs. Tricia Foster of Beltsville, Md., who was third.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —

Mount Healthy, Ohio, handed

Bloomington, Ind., its first defeat in the Ohio Valley Region

Babe Ruth baseball tournament

Tuesday, downing the Hoosier squad 9-3.

Harvey, Ill., clobbered Iron

Mountain, Mich., 29-5 Tuesday night to move into the semifinals tonight against Bloomington.

However, Pinson added that

"if people can't be fair to me,

I don't have to be fair to people.

Ever since I've been here (in Cleveland) I've been getting the run-around, and I'm tired of it.

"Gabe (Indians vice president

Gabe Paul) knows how I feel.

I talked to my wife about it, too, and she said anything I might do is all right with her."

Pinson, who hit .286 last season with 24 homers and 82 RBIs, reportedly has a 1971 base salary of $61,500. The clauses negated by Kuhn reportedly contained additional money based on Pinson's RBI and runs scored performances.

HAMILTON YOUTH LEADS

Ohio Junior Golf

FAIRBORN, Ohio (AP)—Robert

in the opening round of the Ohio

The Hamilton youth was at least partially successful in shooting a one-under-par 71 to hold the lead going into today's final 18 holes.

Pinson Will Copy Act Of Sudden Sam

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians are about to have another Sam McDowell case. Only this time it will be outfielder Vada Pinson in the role of the player asking for a new contract.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said today that it has learned that Pinson intends to use the same tactics that McDowell did — leaving the team and asking to be a free agent — in order to regain the money he might have lost when Commissioner Bowie Kuhn deleted bonus clauses in his contract June 11.

Similar clauses were also eliminated in McDowell's contracts and those of Graig Nettles and the now-retired Ken Harrelson.

After meeting with the Indians left-handed pitcher when he rejoined the team Monday after a 10-day dispute, Pinson told the Plain Dealer:

"I know what I'm going to do, but I don't want to talk about it yet."

However, Pinson added that "if people can't be fair to me, I don't have to be fair to people. Ever since I've been here (in Cleveland) I've been getting the run-around, and I'm tired of it." "Gabe (Indians vice president Gabe Paul) knows how I feel. I talked to my wife about it, too, and she said anything I might do is all right with her."

Pinson, who hit .286 last season with 24 homers and 82 RBIs, reportedly has a 1971 base salary of $61,500. The clauses negated by Kuhn reportedly contained additional money based on Pinson's RBI and runs scored performances.

HAMILTON YOUTH LEADS Ohio Junior Golf

FAIRBORN, Ohio (AP)—Robert Powers said he tried to counter gusting winds by keeping the ball "low and straight" in the opening round of the Ohio Junior Golf Tournament.

The Hamilton youth was at least partially successful in shooting a one-under-par 71 to hold the lead going into today's final 18 holes.

TIME OUT — Detroit Lions' quarterback Greg Landry announces he is playing out his option this year with the Lions because, he says, the National Football Conference team's single salary offer was "ridiculously low."

PENSION FUND WINS Scioto Downs Feature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The favorite in Scioto Downs' featured $1,500 pace Tuesday night, Pension Fund, romped home to win by six lengths in 2:04 3-5ths.

Driven by Delaware's Wayne "Curly" Smart, Pension Fund won on an off track due to rain and paid $3.40, $3 and $2.60.

Second in the one-mile pace was Anita Brewster, paying $5.40 and $3.60. Sophisticated Gal showed to pay $6.20.

The nightly double of No. 3 Roving Reporter and No. 6 Early Farr paid $16 even, and the 3-6 quinella paid $54.90. Attendance was 7,795 and a total of
